BRADSHAW AVENUE MATTER

Again Comes Up And the Assessing
Ordinance Is Passed—Prospect
Street Property Owners Likely to Have Improvements.

Dr. R. J. Marshall had his fighting
clothes with him at the meeting of council last night. Though he did not get properly warmed up until the session was almost finished, he made up
for the delay, and what he did to Councilman McLane was a great sufficiency. His remarks were bombastic while they lasted and the spectators thoroughly enjoyed the speech.

The fun was started when McLane
took the floor to make a plea in behalf of a number of residents of Lisbon road, near the outskirts of the city. He said that when the road had
been graded several property owners
on the north side of the thoroughfare
had been left in midair with no means
of getting down onto the street with-
out climbing or rolling over the steep
ledge. He thought a pair of steps
should be built on a certain alley,
which he could not name or locate,
so that the residents of the district he
referred to would have a means of
getting to and from their homes.

In concluding his remarks McLane
said it was a shame that the matter
had been so long delayed, and incidentally stated that if the property
owners along Pennsylvania avenue
had been handicapped as those of Lisbon road had, they would long ago have
been relieved. This remark was what stirred up Dr. Marshall, and he immediately took the floor.

"Mr. President," he began, "if there is anything I detest it is to hear somebody continually bawling, and I feel
that the gentleman who just completed the speech needs a good calling
down. If the residents in the vicinity
of where he designated fail to get every little whim satisfied, or even have
a peach tree skinned, McLane must
bawl, and I am getting tired of it."
The doctor had not fairly seated himself after his speech until McLane was
on the floor and went for the gentle-
man. The controversy continued until the proposition relative to the building of the steps was referred to
the street committee.

McLane again took the floor and stated
that he desired to "bawl" some-
more. He then took up the matter of the building of a foot bridge from Chestnut to Eighth street. Almost every member of council took part in a discussion of the question, with the
result the street committee was instructed to take the matter in charge.

When the meeting was called to order Mr. Cripps was absent, but made
his appearance later on. The reading
of the minutes took up much time,
after which unfinished business was looked after. On motion by Marshall
the rules were suspended and the ordinances fixing grades on Elizabeth,
Grant and Walter streets and Walter
alley were placed on final reading and
passed.

The Bradshaw avenue assessing ordinance was placed on its third reading and passed without a dissenting
vote. A communication from Mrs. Jennie Kail, who is a property owner on
that thoroughfare, was read, stating
that she would be willing to pay $300
for her share of the assessment. The figures of the engineer show that Mrs.
Kail's expense according to the width
of the frontage of her property would amount to $892. This caused the solons to do a little calculating. Bullock
thought the city should be willing to pay the difference between Mrs. Kail's
figures and the real cost of the improvement in front of her property.
The proposition was argued at length,
and the clerk finally instructed to with-
hold publication of the ordinance until an investigation had been made.

A petition was read from property
owners in the Starkey addition, asking for grade lines to be established
in a certain alley. The engineer was instructed to do the work.

partment submitted a communication
which was read by the clerk, asking
that the action taken at the last meeting of council relative to the ordinance
regulating the wages of the street laborers be reconsidered.

Dr. Marshall made a speech in which
he strongly advocated that the ordinance be again taken up, and this was
finally done with the result that it
was passed. On motion by Mr. Bullock the ordinance was amended so
that the commissioner is instructed to employ veterans of the Civil war whenever possible. The street laborers
will now receive $1.75 instead of $1.50
per day.

The report of Mayor Davidson for
the month ending June 11 showed that $151 had been collected for fines and licenses. Fire Chief Morley's report
showed that the department had been called out four times on account of
fire, 20 patrol calls received and six
ambulance calls.

A resolution was read from the members of the Hospital association, asking the city to lease four lots owned
at the old cemetery at the foot of Sixth street to the association for a
site for the building of the contemplated hospital. Cripps asked about
the deed for the property and Marshall explained that he had temporary
possession of the deed. The resolution was passed, all members of council voting in favor of it.

The association is to pay $1 a year
for each lot as long as the land is used
for hospital purposes.

A bill which had been presented
by the Crockery City Brewing company for $265.36 was considered. The amount was for the payment of a sewer on Tanyard run which had been built by the company. It was placed on the payroll.

The bill of $23.35 which James Rine-
hart presented to council some time
ago, which he claimed for damages sustained by reason of his dray wagon
having been upset owing to the bad
condition of the road at the power
house was turned down and the same
referred to the street railway company.

The bill for street lights, amounting to $691.29, was brought up and criticized, as usual. The police had only reported "outage" to the extent
of 60 cents, and the city solons, with
few exceptions, registered a kick.
They said the police weren't attending properly to the work of keeping
tab on the different lights about town.
The light committee was instructed to Clerk Hanley stated that notes in
the city banks to the amount of $40,- 000 were due. He was instructed to have them renewed.

The pay ordinance was passed, after
which a resolution from the board of
health was read, asking that sewers
in different parts of the city be looked after. McLane was asked to report
concerning the proposed meeting of
the sewer commissioners. He said
that one of the members had been
sick, and unable to attend a meeting
as yet. They will meet later, when the sewer question will be referred to
them.

An ordinance fixing grade lines of Boyce street was passed under suspension of rules. A request from property owners of Ogden street, asking
that a grade be established on that thoroughfare was favorably acted on.

A communication was read from B.
A. Ormes, in which he notified council
that travel on his property at the Dry Run bridge would have to cease,
or a damage suit would result. Teamsters have encroached on Mr. Ormes'
premises owing to the impassable condition of the road leading up to the
approaches of the bridge. Mr. Marshall said he would confer with the
writer of the communication in an effort to induce him to be calm for a while, at least.

Marshall spoke concerning the intention of the street railway company
to build a trestle along the road leading up to the Dry Run bridge. He said that the property owners in that section were protesting, and he
thought the company should be restrained from building the trestle unless they agreed to fill and grade the
roadbed of their tracks as soon as possible. Thomas said it was the intention of the company to make the fill
and that the trestle would be only
temporarily in use.

Nice said that Mr. Healy had informed him that the fill would be made in the near future, but Marshall
was inclined to believe that an understanding should be had with Mr.
Healy before permission was granted
for the building of the trestle. The

PROSPECTS INDICATE A RECORD-
BREAKING MONTH.

Patrol Made Four Runs And Each
Time a Victim of the Flowing
Bowl Was Picked Up.

The mayor's docket this morning
showed four new cases for last night
and this morning, and all victims but
one had enough money to pay their fines. The mayor and the chief both
stated that if business in police court
month of June would be a record-
breaker.

Cross Kerr was taken in tow early
last evening. Officer Stafford found him on West Walnut street in a deplorable state of drunkenness. He
was lifted bodily into the patrol and
taken to jail. This morning the mayor fined Kerr $1 and costs. He was
"broke" and yet lingers behind the
bars.

A. K. Adams fell into the hands of Officer Dawson, and the patrol took
him to the bastille. This morning Adams pleaded guilty to drunkenness
and paid a fine of $1 and costs, thus
securing his liberty.

Robert Hogue allowed liquor to get
the upper hand of him and was arrested for drunkenness by Officer Ma-
honey. The patrol conveyed the victim to the lockup and by paying $1
and costs this morning he was allowed
to go.

Thomas McKeever was in bad shape
this morning and sleepy from the effects of an all-night debauch, he lay
down on the pavement on Union
street to rest himself. Patrolman
Woods interrupted the siesta and with
the assistance of the patrol landed
the sleeper in jail, where he finished
his nap. Then the mayor relieved McKeever of $5.60 and turned him
loose.

None of the victims of the raid of Tuesday morning, who were unable
to pay their fines, have as yet succeeded in so doing. Richard Walker
and wife will go to Canton on the morning train if they do not make the necessary raise today.

BEEBOUT-POULTON

Dr. Crawford Tied the Nuptial Knot
for Another Couple Last Night.

Beebout, both of this city, were married at the parsonage of the First M.
E. church by Rev. Dr. Clark Crawford
last evening. They will reside here,
where they have many friends.

STORM DAMAGE WAS EXTENSIVE

At Sebring Buildings Partially Completed Were Almost Wholly Demolished.

WASHOUTS ON THE C. & P.

Held Up Trains on the River Division
for Many Hours—Lightning Gave
an East End Family a Close Call.
Gas Main Broken.

Sebring, June 12.—The storm which
passed over this town last evening was
a destructive one, the wind doing a great deal of damage.

A half completed addition to J. M.
McIntosh's store room was blown
down and the loss to the owners will
be considerable.

The roof of the machine shop was blown away and other damage done to
the plant that will take some time to repair.

A new six-room dwelling being
erected by the Sebrings had reached a point in its erection where it was ready for the siding. It was completely demolished and it will be necessary to start over again with the
work.

Orchards and shade trees suffered
to some extent, while the rain which
came down in torrents caused damage
to cellar walls and drains. The storm
was the worst in the history of the
town.

BAD WASHOUTS

RAILROAD TRAINS.

Tracks Near Empire And Port Homer
Were Deeply Covered With Earth.

The storm yesterday did considerable damage to the river division of the C. & P. railroad. At Empire a culvert became clogged and the water
washed the tracks out, besides covering it for 150 feet with about 10 feet
of earth.

The same thing occurred between Empire and Port Homer, the track being covered for about 100 feet. A short distance this side of Port Homer the track was also covered, but
it was not quite so bad. Train No. 360,
running from Bellaire to Pittsburg,
due here at 4:06, did not pass this city
until almost 3 o'clock this morning
and No. 340 this morning was delayed
one hour and 30 minutes.

GAS SHUT OFF

A Break in the Main Due to the Storm
Caused Embar-
rassment.

An extensive washout just below
Empire yesterday afternoon caused a break in the Fort Pitt Gas company's
main and the supply in this company's
lines in this city and Wellsville was
shut off from 5 o'clock last evening
until 9 o'clock this morning.

A large force of men were put to
work refilling the washouts as soon
as the break occurred and the work
was carried on all night. The main
was finally connected at about 9
o'clock this morning.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

A Tree In Front of an East Liverpool
Yesterday.

A large shade tree in front of the residence of Henry Herbert in the East End, was struck by lightning
during the storm yesterday afternoon.
Several members of the family were
standing on the front porch when the
tree was struck. No one was injured,
but all were slightly dazed by the shock.

A STORM VICTIM

Brint Dubbs, Who Had His Feet
Frozen at Salem, Is Dead.

Salem, June 12.—Brint M. Dubbs,
aged 35, a nail mill worker, died yesterday, from blood poisoning. His feet
were frozen in the big storm of last April and lack of attention to them
brought on the trouble that ended fatally.

ledy, of Buffalo, was killed near Hor-

MURDEROUS ASSAULT MADE IN WELLSVILLE

Wellsville Sunday night. He leaves
four brothers. A remarkable coincidence is that George Dingley dreamed Saturday night that his brother had died suddenly. He related the dream
to his brothers, and shortly afterward
received the message announcing his death.

WORKERS BACK IN THEIR OLD
PLACES TODAY.

The Two Employees Who Were Laid
Off Have Voluntarily
Resigned.

The laundry workers employed at
the Woodbine Laundry returned to
work this morning, a settlement having been effected last evening.

The terms of the settlement as
given out by President McLane, of Trades Council, who had charge of
the affairs of the union, are that the
two employees who had been laid off
Saturday, and by reason of which action the members of the union refused
should be given the option of either
returning to work with the understanding that they continue for the
customary two weeks' notice or quit
outright. They chose the latter and
the remainder of the employees returned to work this morning.

A reporter was summoned to the Woodbine this morning, where he was
met by a committee of the laundry
workers. They made the statement
that the information given out yesterday was not authorized by them. Although the union had held a meeting
yesterday, at the close of which the statements were made, they said they
had been exaggerated and had been
prompted by a spirit of spite. They think in fairness to themselves and
the firm it is proper that this statement be made, as it is their desire that
the relations with their employers be
of the most cordial nature.

IN WHICH PAT FITZPATRICK WAS WORSTED.

A Man Named Maguire Gave the Sa-
Him Badly.

Patrick Fitzpatrick, a Wellsville saloon keeper, is alleged to have insult-
ed a railroad shop employe named Maguire about 1 o'clock this afternoon.
Maguire pitched into him, gave him a
sound drubbing and cut him severely
about the face with a razor.

Fitzpatrick was so used up that he
was taken up town in a street railway
express car.

BODY RECOVERED

Dynamite Charges at Last Brought
Up Young O'Reilly's
Remains.

The report which became circulated last night of the finding of the body of Patrick O'Reilly, the lad who
was drowned Monday evening near
the ferry landing at Newell's, is incorrect.

A party of men went to the scene of
the drowning this afternoon with 15
dynamite cartridges, which were
shot off in the water.

It is believed by many persons that
young O'Reilly's body is fastened
among the rocks near the spot where
he sank. The river bottom is very stony at this point and the water un-
young O'Reilly's body was fastened
usually deep.

INCORPORATED

$100,000.

Columbus, June 12.—(Special.)—
The Smith-Phillips Pottery company,
of East Liverpool, was incorporated
yesterday. Capital $100,000.

This is the firm which will take
charge of the plant formerly known as the Klondike, in the East End. The incorporators are as follows: J. T.
Smith, W. S. Smith, W. H. Phillips,
W. F. Smith and W. H. Griggs.

Two new toilet sets and one dinner
set will be among the specialties manufactured.

William Higginson Struck Over
the Head With a Beer
Bottle.

HIS SKULL WAS FRACTURED

Ten Pieces of Bone Extracted From
His Skull and His Condition

HIS ASSAILANT UNDER ARREST

The Trouble the Outgrowth of a Dispute in Which Young Higginson
And Mardis Engaged—Mardis Lay
in Wait for His Victim.

William Higginson, of this city, lies
unconscious at the home of his son
in Wellsville, with his skull fractured.
He may not recover.

Mr. Higginson was the victim of a brutal and cowardly assault at the saloon run by him and his son in Wells-
ville at 8:30 last night. His assailant,
Charles W. Mardis, is in jail. Bail
was refused him until the result of Higginson's injuries is known.

According to information gathered
in Wellsville today, Mardis was in Higginson's place last evening, playing cards with William Higginson, Jr.,
when a dispute arose and the two
were soon engaged in an altercation.
Young Higginson is alleged to have
struck Mardis. Mr. Higginson, Sr.,
then interfered and ordered Mardis
out.

Mardis left, vowing vengeance. He went around through the passage way
and hid in the dark at the rear of the saloon. When Mr. Higginson went to the back door at closing time and
opened it, he was struck full in the
face by a missile that was hurled at him, knocked down and rendered unconscious.

It is said that the wound in Higgin-
son's head was caused by a beer bottle, which struck him in the forehead
over the right eye. Others maintain
that a heavier weapon must have been
used, to deal so severe a blow, and
that Mr. Higginson was hit with a piece of iron. It appears probable
that he was mistaken for his son and
got the blow intended for him.

Hearing the crash the sons of Mr.
Higginson, Fred and William, rushed
to his assistance. They found him
bleeding from a terrible gash and in
an unconscious state. With as much haste as possible he was removed to the home of Fred Higginson, on Fourth and Front streets, and Drs.
Holland, Tarr and Hutchinson sum-
moned.

The physicians labored many hours
with the injured man. After removing at least 10 pieces of bone from
the wound, they left the injured man
resting comfortably, but weak from
the loss of blood.

Today the physicians said that with
absolute quiet the patient might recover. They admit, however, that his condition is precarious and that complications might easily arise that
would result fatally.

The whole town of Wellsville and
all others who have heard of the affair are indignant at what they term
an unprovoked assault on an inoffen-
sive and peaceable man.

Mardis was promptly arrested by Officer Madden and locked up.

Rochester Dickey, father-in-law of Mardis, is in Wellsville pleading with
the mayor to have Mardis admitted
to bail. A hearing in the case will probably be held this afternoon.

William Higginson is about 55 years
of age, of slight build and slender
frame. He is not strong physically
and has suffered from an injury to his
head, accidentally received some years
ago. He and his wife and daughter live on Fourth street in East Liverpool.

He was for many years a prominent
pottery worker and had charge of the
decorating department for McNicol &
Burton and later for the D. E. McNicol
pottery. About two years ago he bought out the J. M. House bottling establishment in Wellsville. His son
Fred is the manager of the Wellsville
saloon.

Mardis has run a barber shop on Main street in Wellsville for the past eight years. He is a powerfully built
man, weighing over 225 pounds and
has a reputation as a fighting man. He

TILT BETWEEN MEMBERS MADE COUNCIL LIVELY

Dr. Marshall and Councilman
McLane Indulge in Verbal Sparring.

LABORERS' PAY RAISED

Cemetery.

BRADSHAW AVENUE MATTER

Again Comes Up And the Assessing
Ordinance Is Passed — Prospect
Street Property Owners Likely to Have Improvements.

Dr. R. J. Marshall had his fighting
clothes with him at the meeting of
get properly warmed up until the session was almost finished, he made up
for the delay, and what he did to Councilman McLane was a great sufficiency.
His remarks were bombastic while
they lasted and the spectators thoroughly enjoyed the speech.

The fun was started when McLane
took the floor to make a plea in be-
bon road, near the outskirts of the
been graded several property owners
had been left in midair with no means
of getting down onto the street with-
out climbing or rolling over the steep
ledge. He thought a pair of steps
should be built on a certain alley,
which he could not name or locate,
so that the residents of the district he
referred to would have a means of
getting to and from their homes.

In concluding his remarks McLane
said it was a shame that the matter
had been so long delayed, and inci-
owners along Pennsylvania avenue
had been handicapped as those of Lis-
bon road had, they would long ago have
been relieved. This remark was what
stirred up Dr. Marshall, and he immediately took the floor.

is anything I detest it is to hear some-
body continually bawling, and I feel
that the gentleman who just completed the speech needs a good calling
down. If the residents in the vicinity
of where he designated fail to get every little whim satisfied, or even have
a peach tree skinned, McLane must
bawl, and I am getting tired of it."
The doctor had not fairly started himself after his speech until McLane was
on the floor and went for the gentle-
man. The controversy continued until the proposition relative to the
building of the steps was referred to
the street committee.

McLane again took the floor and stated
that he desired to "bawl" some-
the building of a foot bridge from Chestnut to Eighth street. Almost every member of council took part in a
discussion of the question, with the
result the street committee was in-
structed to take the matter in charge.

When the meeting was called to order Mr. Cripps was absent, but made
of the minutes took up much time,
after which unfinished business was taken after. On motion by Marshall
the rules were suspended and the ordinances fixing grades on Elizabeth,
Grant and Walter streets and Walter
alley were placed on final reading and
passed.

The Bradshaw avenue assessing ordinance was placed on its third read-
ing and passed without a dissenting
vote. A communication from Mrs. Jen-
nie Kail, who is a property owner on
that she would be willing to pay $300
for her share of the assessment. The
figures of the engineer show that Mrs.
Kail's expense according to the width
amount to $692. This caused the so-ons to do a little calculating. Bullock
thought the city should be willing to
figures and the real cost of the improvement in front of her property.

and the clerk finally instructed to with-
hold publication of the ordinance until an investigation had been made.
owners in the Starkey addition, ask-
on a certain alley. The engineer was instructed to do the work.

The employees of the city street department submitted a communication

that the action taken at the last meet-
regulating the wages of the street laborers be reconsidered.

Dr. Marshall made a speech in which he strongly advocated that the ordinance be again taken up, and this was
finally done with the result that it
was passed. On motion by Mr. Bul-
lock the ordinance was amended so
ever possible. The street laborers
will now receive $1.75 instead of $1.50
per day.

the month ending June 11 showed that $151 had been collected for fines and
licenses. Fire Chief Morley's report
showed that the department had been
ambulance calls.

A resolution was read from the members of the Hospital association, ask-
ing the city to lease four lots owned
Sixth street to the association for a
site for the building of the contem-
plated hospital. Cripps asked about
the deed for the property and Mar-
shall explained that he had temporary
possession of the deed. The resolution was passed, all members of council voting in favor of it.

The association is to pay $1 a year
for each lot as long as the land is used
for hospital purposes.

A bill which had been presented
by the Crockery City Brewing company for $265.36 was considered. The
amount was for the payment of a
sewer on Tanyard run which had been built by the company. It was placed
on the payroll.

The bill of $23.35 which James Rine-
hart presented to council some time
ago, which he claimed for damages sustained by reason of his dray wagon
condition of the road at the power
house was turned down and the same
referred to the street railway company.

The bill for street lights, amount-
ing to $691.29, was brought up and
criticized, as usual. The police had
few exceptions, registered a kick.
They said the police weren't attend-
tab on the different lights about town.
The light committee was instructed to Clerk Hanley stated that notes in
the city banks to the amount of $40,- 000 were due. He was instructed to
have them renewed.

which a resolution from the board of
in different parts of the city be looked
concerning the proposed meeting of
that one of the members had been
as yet. They will meet later, when the sewer question will be referred to them.

An ordinance fixing grade lines of Boyce street was passed under suspension of rules. A request from property owners of Ogden street, asking
that a grade be established on that
thoroughfare was favorably acted on.

A communication was read from B.
A. Ormes, in which he notified council
that travel on his property at the
or a damage suit would result. Team-
sters have encroached on Mr. Ormes'
premises owing to the impassable condition of the road leading up to the
approaches of the bridge. Mr. Mar-
shall said he would confer with the
writer of the communication in an effort to induce him to be calm for a
while, at least.

Marshall spoke concerning the intention of the street railway company
to build a trestle along the road leading up to the Dry Run bridge. He
thought the company should be re-
strained from building the trestle un-
less they agreed to fill and grade the
roadbed of their tracks as soon as possible. Thomas said it was the intention of the company to make the fill
temporarily in use.

Nice said that Mr. Healy had informed him that the fill would be
made in the near future, but Marshall
was inclined to believe that an understanding should be had with Mr.
Healy before permission was granted
for the building of the trestle. The

Patrol Made Four Runs And Each
Time a Victim of the Flowing
Bowl Was Picked Up.

The mayor's docket this morning
showed four new cases for last night
and this morning, and all victims but
fines. The mayor and the chief both
month of June would be a record-
breaker.

Cross Kerr was taken in tow early
last evening. Officer Stafford found
him on West Walnut street in a deplorable state of drunkenness. He
was lifted bodily into the patrol and
taken to jail. This morning the mayor
"broke" and yet lingers behind the
bars.

A. K. Adams fell into the hands of Officer Dawson, and the patrol took him to the bastille. This morning Adams pleaded guilty to drunkenness
securing his liberty.

Robert Hogue allowed liquor to get
the upper hand of him and was arrested for drunkenness by Officer Ma-
honey. The patrol conveyed the victim to the lockup and by paying $1
and costs this morning he was allowed
to go.

Thomas McKeever was in bad shape
this morning and sleepy from the effects of an all-night debauch, he lay
down on the pavement on Union
street to rest himself. Patrolman
the assistance of the patrol landed
his nap. Then the mayor relieved
loose.

None of the victims of the raid of Tuesday morning, who were unable
to pay their fines, have as yet suc-
and wife will go to Canton on the
morning train if they do not make the
necessary raise today.

Dr. Crawford Tied the Nuptial Knot

Beebout, both of this city, were married at the parsonage of the First M.
E. church by Rev. Dr. Clark Crawford
last evening. They will reside here,

At Sebring Buildings Partially
Wholly Demolished.

WASHOUTS ON THE C. & P.

Held Up Trains on the River Division
an East End Family a Close Call.
Gas Main Broken.

Sebring, June 12.—The storm which
passed over this town last evening was
a destructive one, the wind doing a
great deal of damage.

A half completed addition to J. M.
McIntosh's store room was blown
down and the loss to the owners will
be considerable.

blown away and other damage done to
the plant that will take some time to
repair.

A new six-room dwelling being
a point in its erection where its was
ready for the siding. It was completely demolished and it will be nec-
work.

Orchards and shade trees suffered
came down in torrents caused damage
to cellar walls and drains. The storm
town.

RAILROAD TRAINS.

Earth.

The storm yesterday did considerable damage to the river division of
the C. & P. railroad. At Empire a
culvert became clogged and the water
washed the tracks out, besides covering it for 150 feet with about 10 feet
of earth.

The same thing occurred between
ing covered for about 100 feet. A short distance this side of Port Homer the track was also covered, but
it was not quite so bad. Train No. 369,
running from Bellaire to Pittsburg,
due here at 4:06, did not pass this city
until almost 3 o'clock this morning
and No. 340 this morning was delayed

CAS SHUT OFF

Caused Embar-
rassment.

An extensive washout just below
Empire yesterday afternoon caused a
break in the Fort Pitt Gas company's
lines in this city and Wellsville was
shut off from 5 o'clock last evening
until 9 o'clock this morning.

A large force of men were put to
as the break occurred.

as the break occurred and the work
was carried on all night. The main
was finally connected at about 9

A Tree In Front of an East Liverpool
Yesterday.

A large shade tree in front of the
residence of Henry Herbert in the East End, was struck by lightning
during the storm yesterday afternoon.
Several members of the family were
standing on the front porch when the
tree was struck. No one was injured,
but all were slightly dazed by the
shock.

A STORM VICTIM

Frozen at Salem, Is Dead.

Salem, June 12.—Brint M. Dubbs,
aged 35, a nail mill worker, died yester-
day, from blood poisoning. His feet
were frozen in the big storm of last
April and lack of attention to them
brought on the trouble that ended fatally.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT MADE IN WELLSVILLE

Wellsville Sunday night. He leaves
four brothers. A remarkable coincidence is that George Dingley dream-
ed Saturday night that his brother had
died suddenly. He related the dream
to his brothers, and shortly afterward
death.

PLACES TODAY.

The Two Employees Who Were Laid
Off Have Voluntarily
Resigned.

The laundry workers employed at
the Woodbine Laundry returned to
work this morning, a settlement having been effected last evening.

The terms of the settlement as
given out by President McLane, of Trades Council, who had charge of
the affairs of the union, are that the
two employees who had been laid off
Saturday, and by reason of which action the members of the union refused
to work until they were reinstated,
should be given the option of either
returning to work with the under-
standing that they continue for the
outright. They chose the latter and
the remainder of the employees re-
turned to work this morning.

A reporter was summoned to the Woodbine this morning, where he was
met by a committee of the laundry
workers. They made the statement
that the information given out yester-
day was not authorized by them. Although the union had held a meeting
yesterday, at the close of which the
had been exaggerated and had been
prompted by a spirit of spite. They
think in fairness to themselves and
the firm it is proper that this statement be made, as it is their desire that
the relations with their employers be
of the most cordial nature.

WORSTED.

A Man Named Maguire Gave the Sa-
Him Badly.

Patrick Fitzpatrick, a Wellsville sa-
loon keeper, is alleged to have insulted a railroad shop employee named Maguire about 1 o'clock this afternoon.
Maguire pitched into him, gave him a
sound drubbing and cut him severely
about the face with a razor.

was taken up town in a street railway
express car.

BODY RECOVERED

Dynamite Charges at Last Brought
Up Young O'Reilly's
Remains.

The report which became circulated last night of the finding of the
body of Patrick O'Reilly, the lad who
was drowned Monday evening near
the ferry landing at Newell's, is incorrect.

the drowning this afternoon with 15
dynamite cartridges, which were
shot off in the water.

It is believed by many persons that
young O'Reilly's body is fastened
among the rocks near the spot where
he sank. The river bottom is very
stony at this point and the water un-
young O'Reilly's body was fastened
usually deep.

$100,000.

The Smith-Phillips Pottery company,
yesterday. Capital $100,000.

This is the firm which will take
charge of the plant formerly known
as the Klondike, in the East End. The
incorporators are as follows: J. T.
W. F. Smith and W. H. Griggs.

Two new toilet sets and one dinner
set will be among the specialties manufactured.

William Higginson Struck Over
the Head With a Beer
Bottle.

Ten Pieces of Bone Extracted From
His Skull and His Condition

HIS ASSAILANT UNDER ARREST

And Mardis Engaged—Mardis Lay
in Wait for His Victim.

William Higginson, of this city, lies
unconscious at the home of his son
in Wellsville, with his skull fractured.
He may not recover.

Mr. Higginson was the victim of a
brutal and cowardly assault at the saloon run by him and his son in Wells-
ville at 8:30 last night. His assailant,
Charles W. Mardis, is in jail. Bail
was refused him until the result of Higginson's injuries is known.

According to information gathered
in Wellsville today, Mardis was in Higginson's place last evening, playing cards with William Higginson, Jr.,
when a dispute arose and the two
were soon engaged in an altercation.
Young Higginson is alleged to have
struck Mardis. Mr. Higginson, Sr.,
then interfered and ordered Mardis
out.

Mardis left, vowing vengeance. He
went around through the passage way
and hid in the dark at the rear of the saloon. When Mr. Higginson went to
the back door at closing time and
face by a missile that was hurled at
him, knocked down and rendered un-
conscious.

It is said that the wound in Higgin-
son's head was caused by a beer bottle, which struck him in the forehead
over the right eye. Others maintain
that a heavier weapon must have been
that Mr. Higginson was hit with a piece of iron. It appears probable
that he was mistaken for his son and
got the blow intended for him.

Hearing the crash the sons of Mr.
Higginson, Fred and William, rushed
to his assistance. They found him
bleeding from a terrible gash and in
an unconscious state. With as much
haste as possible he was removed to
the home of Fred Higginson, on
Fourth and Front streets, and Drs.
Holland, Tarr and Hutchinson sum-
moned.

The physicians labored many hours
with the injured man. After removing at least 10 pieces of bone from
the wound, they left the injured man
resting comfortably, but weak from
the loss of blood.

Today the physicians said that with
absolute quiet the patient might recover. They admit, however, that his
condition is precarious and that complications might easily arise that
would result fatally.

The whole town of Wellsville and
all others who have heard of the af-
fair are indignant at what they term
an unprovoked assault on an inoffen-
sive and peaceable man.

Mardis was promptly arrested by
Officer Madden and locked up.

Rochester Dickey, father-in-law of Mardis, is in Wellsville pleading with
the mayor to have Mardis admitted
to bail. A hearing in the case will probably be held this afternoon.

William Higginson is about 55 years
of age, of slight build and slender
frame. He is not strong physically
and has suffered from an injury to his
head, accidentally received some years
ago. He and his wife and daughter
live on Fourth street in East Liver-
pool.

He was for many years a prominent
pottery worker and had charge of the
decorating department for McNicol &
Burton and later for the D. E. McNicol
pottery. About two years ago he bought out the J. M. House bottling
establishment in Wellsville. His son
Fred is the manager of the Wellsville
saloon.

Mardis has run a barber shop on Main street in Wellsville for the past
man, weighing over 225 pounds and
has a reputation as a fighting man. He is a scientific boxer and some years

WELLSVILLE

Petition for Relief Turned Down—Private Company Wants to Build a Railroad Switch.

An adjourned meeting of council met last night in council chamber. President Steiner called the meeting to order with Glaser, Aughinbaugh, Brennan, Donaldson, Steiner and Turner present.

The solicitor asked what committee had charge of the storm sewer between Tenth and Twelfth streets. He said there was some trouble over the right of way on the Worstell property; also with the Trotter property,
and that belonging to the Clendenning family. The sewer can do no harm to Mr. Trotter's piece of land, but on account of an old quarrel with the city
he is unwilling to give the right of way.

The sewer goes within one foot of Clendenning's house, and he says he will sell the whole property for $2,500.
A special committee, composed of Glaser, Brennan and Turner, was appointed to procure right of way between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. Mr.
Turner asked if the council could hire
some one to procure the right of way.
President Steiner asked what the sewer commission is for. Solicitor Wells said it was customary for council to attend to all city property matters.

Mr. Turner said that some people would sign a preliminary paper, but when the legal paper was taken around
they refused to sign.

Fremont McClain presented a request that a grade be established on Twentieth street. The request was granted and Engineer Leith instructed to establish the grade.

The following bills were ordered paid: Forbes & Morrow, $5.24; P. H.
White, $3.25; Henry Herbert, $357.07.

The city engineer presented an ordinance establishing a grade on Mill street. The motion was placed on first reading.

Mr. Van Dyke then came before council. He said: "Gentlemen of council, a petition was placed before your body at its last meeting, praying
for some relief from the destruction
and damages caused by the discharge of heavy cannon and anvils loaded with powder and dirt on the Fourth of July. In years past brick bats have been placed on these cannon, placed on end and have been shot up into the air, endangering the lives of thousands of people. This petition was signed by five enthusiastic people,
and I could have obtained the names
of 500 people if I had had the time.
There is an ordinance which refers
this matter to the mayor and chief of police. Why, you might as well refer it to the waste basket. When the mayor gives his permission we have no recourse. We ask you to refer this matter to the ordinance committee. I like to see the boys have a good time, but when it comes to the destruction of property and the endangering of lives, I object."

President Steiner, in a warm address, answered this speech. He said if Van Dyke expects the mayor and council to run around after these boys
he is badly mistaken. He said there was no call for the words that "you may as well refer the matter to the waste basket as to the mayor and chief." He said there were some "nasty nice" people who do not want to prosecute these people. If they would prosecute they would get their just dues.

Mayor Dennis said all had been done in past years that ought to have been done. Steiner said he did not see why 6,000 people had to dance to six whistles. The petition was turned down.

Judge P. M. Smith sent in a communication asking if a private company could build the switch back of town. He said that he understood that the Pennsylvania company were too slow. He said if the franchise could be procured, he thought a private company would do it. A committee composed of Turner, Brennan and Whitacre was appointed to look into the matter.

The mayor was instructed to order
the commissioner to remove the Bell telephone pole in the rear of E. C.
Taylor's property and the telegraph
pole at Twelfth street.

Mr. Glaser reported bad places in Commerce street between Fifteenth and Seventeenth. There was also a bad hole reported in front of the Wells-ville china works. The improvement committee was given power to act in these matters. Council then adjourned.

A meeting of the sewer commission

of way has been secured as far down
as the Blue property. The commission adjourned without doing anything.

NO IDOLS SACRED

Even Georgetown And Smith's Ferry
Give Way to the Spirit of the Age.

Georgetown is one of the most quaintly interesting places in Pennsylvania. The town is so close to the Ohio line that any doubt as to the boundary or any readjustment of frontier would throw the old place into hysterics. For years the passenger by steamboat has looked at the steep hill road that struggles down to the ferry landing, and wondered what manner of settlement was concealed by the high bluff above. It is one of the fairest on the continent. Back of the village the cemetery tops the hill. Farther back
the ridge is cleft by the gorge down which a turbulent stream makes its way, and a cliff road leads to Hooks-
town.

Georgetown has long been the home
of the mariners who sail the uncertain Ohio. It is an ancient port of departed splendor. Across the river is Smith's Ferry. One is a counterpart of the other. The railroad in its impudence and fussy noisiness has invaded Smith's Ferry, but Georgetown, says
the Pittsburg Times, has kept its primitive innocence. Once, during the Civil war, oil booms made the valley
echo with hopes and creaking walking beams. The wells, however, subsided, and the valley settled back to its bucolic peace and social reserve. The old tavern has been a modest haven for tired Pittsburghers who liked to sit under the great trees and idly watch the river. From Smith's Ferry to Hooks-town has been an Eden. Now comes another boom. Georgetown is to have mines. Smith's Ferry is to have a trolley road, and tenement houses and life. The romance is to go. The practical spirit is to invade the sacred predicts. The Hookstown fair may even become commonplace. No idols are sacred in this degenerate day. The everlasting scramble for the dollar is to blame.

Petition for Relief Turned Down—Private Company Wants to Build a Railroad Switch.

An adjourned meeting of council met last night in council chamber. President Steiner called the meeting to order with Glaser, Aughinbaugh, Brennan, Donaldson, Steiner and Turner present.

The solicitor asked what committee had charge of the storm sewer between Tenth and Twelfth streets. He said there was some trouble over the right of way on the Worstell property; also with the Trotter property, and that belonging to the Clendenning family. The sewer can do no harm to Mr. Trotter's piece of land, but on account of an old quarrel with the city he is unwilling to give the right of way.

The sewer goes within one foot of Clendenning's house, and he says he will sell the whole property for $2,500. A special committee, composed of Glaser, Brennan and Turner, was appointed to procure right of way between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. Mr. Turner asked if the council could hire some one to procure the right of way. President Steiner asked what the sewer commission is for. Solicitor Wells said it was customary for council to attend to all city property matters.

Mr. Turner said that some people would sign a preliminary paper, but when the legal paper was taken around they refused to sign.

Fremont McClain presented a request that a grade be established on Twentieth street. The request was granted and Engineer Leith instructed to establish the grade.

The following bills were ordered paid: Forbes & Morrow, $5.24; P. H. White, $3.25; Henry Herbert, $357.07. The city engineer presented an ordinance establishing a grade on Mill street. The motion was placed on first reading.

Mr. Van Dyke then came before council. He said: "Gentlemen of council, a petition was placed before your body at its last meeting, praying for some relief from the destruction and damages caused by the discharge of heavy cannon and anvils loaded with powder and dirt on the Fourth of July. In years past brick bats have been placed on these cannon, placed on end and have been shot up into the air, endangering the lives of thousands of people. This petition was signed by five enthusiastic people, and I could have obtained the names of 500 people if I had had the time. There is an ordinance which refers this matter to the mayor and chief of police. Why, you might as well refer it to the waste basket. When the mayor gives his permission we have no recourse. We ask you to refer this matter to the ordinance committee. I like to see the boys have a good time, but when it comes to the destruction of property and the endangering of lives, I object."

President Steiner, in a warm address, answered this speech. He said if Van Dyke expects the mayor and council to run around after these boys he is badly mistaken. He said there was no call for the words that "you may as well refer the matter to the waste basket as to the mayor and chief." He said there were some "nasty nice" people who do not want to prosecute these people. If they would prosecute they would get their just dues.

Mayor Dennis said all had been done in past years that ought to have been done. Steiner said he did not see why 6,000 people had to dance to six whistles. The petition was turned down.

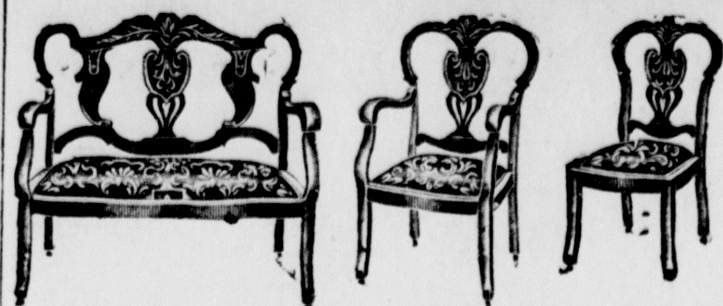

Judge P. M. Smith sent in a communication asking if a private company could build the switch back of town. He said that he understood that the Pennsylvania company were too slow. He said if the franchise could be procured, he thought a private company would do it. A committee composed of Turner, Brennan and Whitacre was appointed to look into the matter.

The mayor was instructed to order the commissioner to remove the Bell telephone pole in the rear of E. C. Taylor's property and the telegraph pole at Twelfth street.

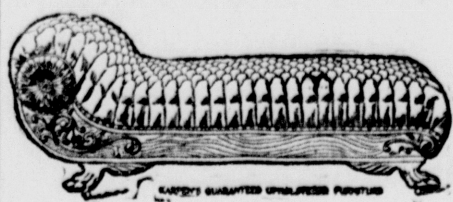

Mr. Glaser reported bad places in Commerce street between Fifteenth and Seventeenth. There was also a bad hole reported in front of the Wellsville china works. The improvement committee was given power to act in these matters. Council then adjourned.

WOULD NOT ACCEPT

A Third Term, If Nominated, Says President McKinley.

TO RETURN TO PRIVATE LIFE

The President's Ambition After His Present Term Is Finished—Statement Issued After Consultations With Cabinet Members.

Washington, June 12.—President McKinley put an effectual quietus on the third-term talk which has gained some currency in the newspapers some currency in the newspapers through interviews with certain well-known Republicans favoring the re-nomination of the president for a third term. Shortly before Tuesday's cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Cortelyou gave to the press a signed statement by the president, intended for the American people, announcing that he was not a candidate for a third term and would not accept a re-nomination if one were tendered.

A decision to issue such a statement was reached Monday night, when the president read to the members of the cabinet his proposed statement, at the same time personally pledging each to secrecy until public announcement was made. The cabinet, on hearing the reasons the president advanced, which are substantially set forth in the public announcement, namely, that talk of a third term would react on the national policies the administration is endeavoring to promote, coincided with the view of their chief that the present was an opportune time for its promulgation. The phraseology of the announcement was considered further by the cabinet Tuesday, and after a change or two from Monday night's draft, Secretary Cortelyou was directed to make it public. The president's intimate personal and political friends later expressed themselves as not surprised at the decision announced, but quite generally conceded that they had not expected such an announcement at this time, thinking that the president would not so quickly take hold of the third-term gossip.

They said, however, that they believed the president had shown his quick and excellent political judgment by crushing the third-term movement in its very birth.

Following was the statement: "I regret that the suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice. But there are now questions of the gravest importance before the administration and the country and their consideration should not be prejudiced in the public mind by even the suspicion of the thought of a third term.

"In view, therefore, of the reiteration of the suggestion of it, I will say now, once for all, expressing a long-settled conviction, that I am not only not a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it, if it were tendered me.

"My only ambition is to serve through my second term to the acceptance of my countrymen, whose generous confidence I so deeply appreciate, and then with them to do my duty in the ranks of private citizenship.

CHINESE INDEMNITY MEETING.

Russian Officials Think It Won't Be Settled Soon.

St. Petersburg, June 12.—The impression prevails in official circles here that the mode of paying the Chinese indemnity will not be settled for a long period, possibly not until the present ministers at Peking are replaced. It is thought they all would welcome a change of post, and that new men would be readier to settle the differences. While Russia is not pressing the guaranteed loan proposition, because the constitutional powers could not guarantee the loan without legislative consent, which would necessitate delay, the plan is not withdrawn. The British proposition is not acceptable.

Mr. Rockhill's arbitration proposal causes some wonder, since the mode of payment is hardly considered a suitable issue for a legal determination.

POPE'S ILLNESS NOT SERIOUS.

Thayer, New York, vice president; secretary: Rev. C. C. Thayer, Clifton Springs, treasurer; Mrs. C. P. W. McArthur, Clifton Springs, librarian.

AN UNEQUALED RECORD

It would seem that hardly anyone can take Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills without receiving marked benefit. The wonderful action of this medicine in putting people on their feet who are in a weak, run down condition is the talk of every place they are known. It is only a short time since they first came to East Liverpool, yet today they are more in evidence for merit with East Liverpool people than all other medicines combined.

ONE OF BROOKS' PUPILS.

He Was Unjustly Punished, but He Forgave the Offense.

After his graduation from Harvard college Phillips Brooks became a teacher in the Boston Latin school. And here, on the very threshold of his career, he met with failure. So much had been expected of him that his want of success was naturally a subject of much comment at the time, and after he had become a great preacher his early failure was still referred to and sometimes was used to point a moral.

It was a turbulent class that Phillips Brooks had to teach. Before he took charge of it three teachers had been driven away. The man who followed Mr. Brooks, to fill out the year, confessed himself so wearied by the frequent resort to corporal punishment that he was obliged to betake himself to the mountains for the summer to recuperate his strength. The boys were certainly in fault, but the blame was not wholly theirs, and long since they may be supposed to have repented of their mischief.

Phillips Brooks was then not yet 20 years old, little more than a boy. Naturally, perhaps, he made mistakes. On one occasion, says his biographer, he punished a boy who had committed no fault.

After Mr. Brooks had become bishop of Massachusetts, as he was moving in his majestic dignity across Boston Common, he met this boy, then a mature man occupying a post of trust and influence. Neither man had forgotten the incident.

Looking down upon his old pupil, the bishop made a certain appeal for forgiveness. "Tell me, now," he said, "that I did not make a mistake and punish the wrong boy."

"Yes, you did make a mistake. You punished the wrong boy," was the answer, "but I have missed so many punishments that I deserved that I ought to be grateful for that one, which I did not deserve."—Youth's Companion.

WOULD NOT ACCEPT

A Third Term, If Nominated, Says President McKinley.

TO RETURN TO PRIVATE LIFE

The President's Ambition After His Present Term Is Finished—Statement Issued After Consultations With Cabinet Members.

Washington, June 12.—President McKinley put an effectual quietus on the third-term talk which has gained some currency in the newspapers through interviews with certain well-known Republicans favoring the re-nomination of the president for a third term. Shortly before Tuesday's cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Cortelyou gave to the press a signed statement by the president, intended for the American people, announcing that he was not a candidate for a third term and would not accept a re-nomination if one were tendered.

A decision to issue such a statement was reached Monday night, when the president read to the members of the cabinet his proposed statement at the same time personally pledging each to secrecy until public announcement was made. The cabinet advanced, which are substantially set forth in the public announcement, namely, that talk of a third term would react on the national politics, the administration is endeavoring to promote, coincided with the view of their chief that the present was an opportune time for its promulgation. The phraseology of the announcement was considered further by the cabinet Tuesday, and after a change or two from Monday night's draft, Secretary Cortelyou was directed to make it public. The president's intimate personal and political friends later expressed themselves as not surprised at the decision announced, but quite generally conceded that they had not expected such an announcement at this time, thinking that the president would not so quickly take hold of the third-term gossip.

Following was the statement: "I regret that the suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice. But there are now questions of the gravest importance before the administration and the country and their consideration should not be prejudiced in the public mind by even the suspicion of the thought of a third term."

"In view, therefore, of the reiteration of the suggestion of it, I will say now, once for all, expressing a long-settled conviction, that I am not only not a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it, if it were tendered to me."

"My only ambition is to serve through my second term to the acceptance of my countrymen, whose generous confidence I so deeply appreciate, and then with them to do my duty in the ranks of private citizenship."

CHINESE INDEMNITY MEETING.

Russian Officials Think It Won't Be Settled Soon.

St. Petersburg, June 12.—The impression prevails in official circles here that the mode of paying the Chinese indemnity will not be settled or a long period, possibly not until the present ministers at Peking are replaced. It is thought they all would welcome a change of post, and that new men were readier to settle the differences. While Russia is not pressing the guaranteed loan proposition, because the constitutional powers could not guarantee the loan without legislative consent, which would necessitate delay, the plan is not withdrawn. The British proposition is of acceptable.

Mr. Rockhill's arbitration proposal causes some wonder, since the mode of payment is hardly considered a suitable issue for a legal determination.

Thayer, Clifton Springs, treasurer; Mrs. C. P. W. McArthur, Clifton Springs, librarian.

THE PRESIDENT HAS SPOKEN.

The third term nonsense is at an end. With his usual good sense and excellent judgment, President McKinley has taken the people into his confidence, as he has often done before. He regrets that the suggestion of a third term has been made. So do other earnest Republicans, seeing in the suggestion capital which the Democracy is ready to make the most of, with or without excuse. But the third term idea was broached by the most earnest and zealous of the president's friends. In their admiration for him they probably did not consider that their words might work harm to the party and prove an embarrassment to the president himself. Such a result might have been looked for, had the proposition been agitated seriously for the next three years. For the third term idea is not popular—at least, not popular enough to arouse enthusiasm—while it would inevitably lead to prejudice and factionalism.

President McKinley, with reluctance and yet firmly, has therefore tackled the subject, and spoken with his characteristic directness. "Once for all," he says, "expressing a long-settled conviction, I am not only not a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it, if it were tendered me."

This is direct and explicit enough. Neither the friends nor the foes of the president can misunderstand it. It puts an effectual quietus upon a movement, which, had it gained sufficient headway, might have worked serious harm. William McKinley is one of the greatest of our presidents. He is too conservative and too prudent to seek to set aside precedents and to violate an unwritten law which the people of the United States have obeyed for more than a hundred years. The best friends of the president and of his party will rejoice that the president has spoken, and spoken so wisely.

THE LIMIT REACHED.

Women are said to be far more patient than men. But, even as the patience of Job had a limit, so has theirs. Miss Mary A. Pearsall, of Freeport, L. I., thinks 25 years of patient waiting is as much as any woman could reasonably be expected to endure, especially where a love affair is concerned. And so she has drawn the line, suing her dilatory lover, who has basked in her smiles for a quarter of a century, for $25,000 damages for non-fulfillment of an alleged contract to marry her. If the facts are as Mary states them, a thousand dollars a year for such patience as she has exercised is none too much.

THE LATEST MINE HORROR.

Western Pennsylvania has been again horrified by a mine explosion which is even more sad than these terrible occurrences usually are. In this case the rescuers, owing to a second explosion of gas, came near meeting the fate of the men for whose bodies they were searching. A report from the scene of the disaster states that the wrecked mine has always been considered dangerous, on account of the poor appliances for forcing air into the shaft. There have been many discussions about improvements, but they appear to have ended in talk.

"The use of safety lamps has been made especially imperative in these mines by the district inspector of mines, owing to the great danger known to exist," says a correspondent, "but careless miners sometimes use open lights because they can see better by them, and this helps them to make a bigger day's wages." And thus lives are needlessly sacrificed to satisfy some ignorant miner's greed for gain. Mining is a risky occupation at best; but half the hazards can be removed by proper precautions. One would think those engaged in the business in Pennsylvania had had enough melancholy warnings so that they would do everything possible to insure safety; but the fact seems otherwise. The mining laws are very stringent, and strict adherence to them should be exacted both of owners and employees. Were this done in all cases, probably half the mine explosions that shock the world from time to time would never occur at all.

Those Philadelphia lodge men who put a candidate for initiation through such severe discipline that he was rendered unconscious and taken to a hospital, had better moderate their ritual or close their lodge room. People are not likely to fall over each other to get into a "fraternity" where a new brother is thus treated.

Americans are about to teach Londoners a few things about the proper management and equipment of street railways. They can do it; for, although their own systems are far from perfect, they are acknowledged, even by English engineers, to be far ahead of those in use in the British isle.

There are still three years in which to decide the important question, Who is the best man to take up William McKinley's work where he leaves off and continue it most wisely? It is a big question, but the nation is used to such problems and usually settles them well.

Country subscriber—Yes, the streets of East Liverpool have been cleaned frequently of late. You are probably aware that it has rained almost every day thus far this month.

A SMALL FIRE

Caused By an Explosion Created Excitement on Broadway Last Night.

A small fire occurred at the home of Mrs. J. W. Wilson on Broadway last night. A new gas stove had been placed in the house and John Deslanders was engaged in connecting the pipes when a small amount of gas which was in the pipe exploded, setting fire to the woodwork.

The department was called, but the flames had been extinguished before it arrived. The explosion is thought to have been caused by a lamp which was sitting on the table. Mr. Deslanders was slightly burned about the face. No damage was done.

CLEANINGS OF A DAY

THE LOCAL POTTERIES

For the first time in weeks the standing committee according to its new makeup will meet this evening.

The members are: T. J. Duffy, S. M. Moore and J. T. Wood, from the Brotherhood, and Thomas McNicol, Patrick McNicol and Ben Harker, from the manufacturers. There is a vast amount of work for the committee to look after, owing to the length of time which has elapsed since the committee held a meeting. However, the matters which they will have to settle will not be of very great importance, as the recent conference sub-committees have disposed of the larger grievances brought up by the various locals.

The employees of the clay shops at the Sevres China company were treated to a one-act comedy a few days ago. There are two young men employed on the plant who are brothers, and one is keeping company with a young lady who resides not far from the pottery. The other began plaguing him about her, and said he was going with the same girl and had a picture of her in his pocket. His brother on the quiet, as he thought, was going through his coat when caught in the act. An argument was the result, and they finally came together, but were separated before either was injured.

Owing to the changed conditions under the agreement of the recent conference a man was taken from the kilndrawing crew at the Globe on a certain kiln, and the men refused to work. This made more work for President Veith, but he was equal to the occasion, and the kiln was drawn yesterday with another crew. An effort was made by N. A. Frederick, a member of the firm, to make matters clear to the men, but they either could not or would not be convinced.

Harvey Brown recently accepted a position in the clay shops at the plant of the Sevres company. He is a fellow who cannot stand for any fun, and when one of his shop mates commenced to jolly him he became angry and wanted to fight. He was caught and thrown the clay shute, was not injured, and has now learned to take a joke.

Eugene Bradshaw, of Niles, was in the city yesterday. He stated that part of the roof had been placed on the Niles pottery plant and that the machinery, which was made in this city, would be shipped this week. The plant will be placed in operation as soon as possible.

The Sebring pottery employees will picnic at Rock Springs park Monday, June 17. About 500 people are expected to attend. The Sebring band will accompany the excursion.

Miss Maude Miller, who has been spending the past three weeks at her home in New Cumberland, has resumed her duties as decorator at the Sevres plant.

J. M. Masters, employed at the Sevres plant, was compelled to quit work and go home yesterday at noon, being ill with measles.

Charles Speight went to Golden, Col., Saturday, where he will have charge of the sagger shop at the pottery there.

Frank Rogers will resign his position at the Sevres pottery Saturday, and will accept a berth at the D. E. McNicol plant.

Robert Rutledge has resigned his position in the warehouse at the Sevres and accepted one running a tinting machine at the same plant.

James Heath, formerly of Peoria, left today for Golden, Col., where he has taken a position as dipper.

William McMasters, who is employed as a batterout at the Sevres plant, is ill with the measles.

Ed Fitzgerald has accepted a position as warehouseman at the Sevres.

Miss Rose Glass has taken a position as decorator at the Sevres pottery.

William Higginson has accepted a position as printer at the Sevres plant.

Local No. 48, warehousemen, has moved from the Odd Fellows' hall to the Smith Fowler building and will hold its first regular meeting there tonight.

THE PRESIDENT HAS SPOKEN.

The third term nonsense is at an end. With his usual good sense and excellent judgment, President McKinley has taken the people into his confidence, as he has often done before. He regrets that the suggestion of a third term has been made. So do other earnest Republicans, seeing in the suggestion capital which the Democracy is ready to make the most of, with or without excuse. But the third term idea was broached by the most earnest and zealous of the president's friends. In their admiration for him they probably did not consider that their words might work harm to the party and prove an embarrassment to the president himself. Such a result might have been looked for, had the proposition been agitated seriously for the next three years. For the third term idea is not popular—at least, not popular enough to arouse enthusiasm—while it would inevitably lead to prejudice and factionalism.

President McKinley, with reluctance and yet firmly, has therefore tackled the subject, and spoken with his characteristic directness. "Once for all," he says, "expressing a long-settled conviction, I am not only not a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it, if it were tendered me."

This is direct and explicit enough. Neither the friends nor the foes of the president can misunderstand it. It puts an effectual quietus upon a movement, which, had it gained sufficient headway, might have worked serious harm. William McKinley is one of the greatest of our presidents. He is too conservative and too prudent to seek to set aside precedents and to violate an unwritten law which the people of the United States have obeyed for more than a hundred years. The best friends of the president and of his party will rejoice that the president has spoken, and spoken so wisely.

THE LIMIT REACHED.

CONSTABLE SUED

JAMES MILLER WAS ON TRIAL BEFORE JUSTICE ROSE.

Accused of Failure to Make a Return. Case a Complicated One.

Constable James A. Miller was the defendant in a case tried yesterday in the court of Justice Rose, which was the first of that kind ever brought before that magistrate. S. L. Miller was the plaintiff, and brought suit to recover $36.91 from the defendant on a judgment which was originally rendered against John W. Fetty. The constable levied on some personal property belonging to Fetty, but failed to make the necessary return within 30 days as required by law.

The plaintiff held the constable for the amount of the judgment, contending that he had failed to properly do his duty in allowing the time to expire before fully executing the work he had been instructed to do. The plaintiff was represented by Attorneys Gaston and Frank Lones, of Wellsville, while Attorneys R. G. Thompson and Hollis Grosshans represented the defendant.

From start to finish the case was stubbornly contested, and each of the lawyers had so many law books in the court room that the magistrate was almost crowded away from his desk. A number of witnesses were examined, among them being Squire McLane.

The defense contended that the constable had not neglected his duty, and that while he did fail to make the necessary return, he did so because of his inability to do otherwise by reason of his instructions to be lenient with Fetty. The attorneys on both sides made long arguments, which involved technicalities of various natures.

Justice Rose stated that as the case was entirely new to him and of a complicated nature, he felt inclined to study it thoroughly before rendering a decision. At the end of his deliberations he rendered in favor of defendant, holding that the judgment as originally rendered was void.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

Given Mrs. Bell, Who Is Organizing a Camp of the Royal Neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stevenson entertained a jolly party of friends at their pleasant home on Cook street last evening in honor of Mrs. Anna Bell, of Akron. Graphophone selections and social converse, followed by choice refreshments, were the order, and the event proved a happy one, being in the nature of a surprise on the lady.

Mrs. Bell is the deputy supreme oracle of the Royal Neighbors of America for this district, and will finish her labors in this city this evening, when a camp of the order will be fully instituted at Mechanics' hall with nearly 30 charter members.

Nice asked Solicitor Gaston for his report concerning what had been done in the matter of collecting the money due from the Rock Springs Railroad company. The solicitor stated he was not ready to report.

Marshall asked why the paving of Calcutta road had not been completed up to the entrance to Riverview cemetery. The matter was finally settled by the cemetery trustees being authorized to do the work, the city paying for the same when it was completed. Superintendent Whitacre was present and said the cemetery association would bear the expense of grading.

Bullock stated that the contemplated inspection of the property which the city expected to purchase at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Robinson street had not been made. A committee composed of Messrs. Heddleston, Cripps and Bullock was appointed to make the inspection.

Heddleston brought up the much-talked-of matter regarding the improvement of Prospect street and asked that definite action be taken. After a lengthy discussion the solicitor was instructed to draw up a petition to be submitted to the property holders along that street between Calcutta road and Lincoln avenue for signatures. It was thought best to sewer and pave the street, and if the residents are willing it is likely the work will be done as soon as possible.

Marshall stated that the work of paving Pennsylvania avenue was progressing too slowly and thought the contractor should put a larger force of men at work. The contractor will be notified to do so at once.

McLane reported that the damage claim of George Shaw had been investigated. He said he thought the city was in no wise responsible for Shaw's injury and did not believe the claim should be paid.

Engineer Kelly called the attention of council to the need of sewerage Fenton street before the contemplated paving was done. The sewer will be built first.

Barlow found fault with the plat of land accepted from the Union Land company at the last meeting of council. He said the alley was only 20 feet wide, and he thought it should be wider. Other members thought likewise, and on motion it was decided to reconsider the action taken on the acceptance of the plat.

Thomas stated that the police committee recommended that the roof and cupola of the city hall be repaired and the building painted. The proposition was much discussed and the committee finally instructed to get bids on the work.

Barlow thought repairs should be made at the Broadway wharf, but other members of council couldn't see it that way. After a somewhat lengthy pow-wow the wharf committee was instructed to make an inspection of all wharves and report at the next meeting. Adjournment was then in order.

THE RIVER RISING

CONSTABLE SUED

Accused of Failure to Make a Return. Case a Complicated One.

Constable James A. Miller was the defendant in a case tried yesterday in the court of Justice Rose, which was the first of that kind ever brought before that magistrate. S. L. Miller was the plaintiff, and brought suit to recover $36.91 from the defendant on a judgment which was originally rendered against John W. Fetty. The constable levied on some personal property belonging to Fetty, but failed to make the necessary return within 30 days as required by law.

The plaintiff held the constable for the amount of the judgment, contending that he had failed to properly do his duty in allowing the time to expire before fully executing the work he had been instructed to do. The amount was represented by Attorneys Gaston and Frank Lones, of Wellsville, while Attorneys R. G. Thompson and Hollis Grosshans represented the defendant.

From start to finish the case was stubbornly contested, and each of the lawyers had so many law books in the court room that the magistrate was almost crowded away from his desk. A number of witnesses were examined, among them being Squire McLane.

The defense contended that the constable had not neglected his duty, and that while he did fail to make the necessary return, he did so because of his inability to do otherwise by reason of his instructions to be lenient with Fetty. The attorneys on both sides made long arguments, which involved technicalities of various natures.

Justice Rose stated that as the case was entirely new to him and of a complicated nature, he felt inclined to study it thoroughly before rendering a decision. At the end of his deliberations he rendered in favor of the defendant, holding that the judgment as originally rendered was void.

Everybody wanted to find out what was the matter, but no one seemed anxious enough to investigate and the affair passed off without anyone finding out what the trouble was about.

Stayed by His Horse.

David Boyd met with a rather unpleasant experience while in the West End during the storm yesterday afternoon. His horse became frightened at the thunder, and he was obliged to stand at the fractions animal's head during all of the storm. He didn't sustain any injury, but felt rather damp when the storm was over.

another and another and knew that we would soon be in the open. The girl's horse stumbled, and she uttered a little cry of dismay, but in a moment the horse was steady on his feet again, and we went on. The beams grew more numerous and fused into a broad shield of moonlight. Two minutes more and we would be out of the wood and into the cleared ground, with the fields racing behind us.

But the light had its evil for us. Against its broad silver disk we were silhouetted like the man in the moon, and the popping of pistols told us that we had become good targets. One bullet passed so close to my head that I thought it must have cut a lock of hair in its passage, and I took it as a warning to hurry.

She was riding well, and her expression was firm and courageous. We shook the reins against the necks of our horses, and taking the chances of bush and vine sped into the open as a volley of pistol shots whistled after us.

I uttered a shout half of pleasure, half of defiance, to our pursuers and bade Old Put show them what it was for a real horse to run his best. I had confidence, too, in the horse that the girl rode, for he was long limbed. He looked like a strong animal, and he certainly had a clean, fast gait that kept him alongside of Old Put.

I regarded our escape as assured, and the girl seemed to take a like view of the case. Relief showed in her eyes.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

"I say, Miss Howard, don't you hear?" exclaimed Crowder roughly.

"Yes, I hear," she replied, "but I'm sorry I can't oblige you. I can't sing any more."

"If you can sing for that d—d rebel there," continued Crowder, "I should think you could sing for us, who are good and loyal English like yourself."

She was silent again.

"Didn't we rescue you?" he continued. "Aren't we your saviors? Don't you owe us gratitude?"

Still unanswered, he swore an oath and said to his comrades:

"Here's gratitude for you, lads. Well, if she won't sing for us, we can sing for her. How do you like this, my lady? It's called 'I'll Owe the Muir to Maggy,' and it goes very well with the song that you sang."

Then he sang the old song, which, like the girl's, was Scotch:

"And I'll owe the muir to Maggy—
Her wit and sweetness call me—
There to my fair I'll show my mind,
Whatever may befall me.
If she loves mirth, I'll learn to sing,
Or, like the Nine to follow.
I'll lay my lugs in Pindus' spring
And invoke Apollo."

"If she admire a martial mind,
I'll sheath my limbs in armor;
If to the softer dance inclined,
With gayest airs I'll charm her;
If she love grandeur day and night,
I'll plot my nation's glory,
Find favor in my prince's sight
And shine in future story."

"Beauty can work wonders with ease
Where wit is corresponding,
And bravest men know best to please
With complaisance abounding.
My bonnie Maggy love can turn
Me to what shape she pleases
If in her breast that flame shall burn
Which in my bosom blazes."

His voice was not unmusical, and he had some idea of rhythm and measure. His comrades joined him, and they roared out a chorus which must have penetrated to the farthest edge of the wood.

"I'll not only sing for you, Miss Howard," said Crowder, "but I'll dance for you too."

It was plain enough that the man was drunk and was relapsing into his natural condition of savagery. I hoped that he would fall into the fire, but he did not. His drunken head swayed from side to side, but he kept step to the beat of the song.

One of the men drew his empty bottle and beat upon its side with his knife blade. It made a lively tinkle that sounded like music, and the others, seeing his success, imitated him. Crowder had not only a vocal but an instrumental chorus as well. His zeal increased, and he danced like an Indian at a scalp dance, while the men roared out the song and beat their bottles with enthusiasm.

"Again I congratulate you on your company, your glorious band of rescuers, Miss Howard," I called out to her.

I know she heard me, but she did not reply. Her lips were set firmly, but her cheeks were growing paler and paler, and she seemed to be white to the hair. I tugged at my bonds, but I could not move them.

The song stopped for a moment, and Crowder, looking around for further amusement, spied me.

"A good song, boys, and good fun," he cried, "but here's better fun. Let's hang the prisoner and see him squirm."

The others, as drunk as their leader, shouted their approval, but the girl sprang up.

"You shall not do that!" she cried.

"And why not, miss?" asked Crowder. "He is our prisoner."

"Because I will not permit it!" she cried.

They roared with laughter.

"If you do," she said, "I will report your act to Colonel Tarleton. This man is an important prisoner. He can guide Tarleton to Morgan, and he will do it to save his life. He must be taken safely to the British camp. Tarleton will reward you well."

"All right, if you say so, Miss Howard," he said. "Anything to oblige, especially one as handsome as you are. And we won't hang him tonight. Maybe we will do it in the morning anyhow, but that's no reason why we should stop the fun now. A soldier's life is hard, and he ought to make merry while he can."

He took a large flask from his haversack and shared it with his men. Then they began to sing and dance again, all of them wild with drink.

It was an orgy of savages. The fire had died down and ceased to blaze; only the red embers glowed in the darkness. I could feel the blackness of the night which rolled up and encircled us more closely. The girl was as immovable as a statue. Her tawny hair shone in the dim light, and I could see that her face was still white, but that was all.

One of the men fell down presently

from sheer exhaustion.

The man never moved, but began to snore, and a second one yielded to exertion and whisky, and stretching himself out on the ground, went to instant sleep. Crowder himself was the third and was followed speedily by the others, including the sentinel, who had joined without objection in the orgy. The six men were sound asleep in a slumber heavy with weariness and liquor.

A last brand fell over in the coals and blazed up. The girl rose from the log, and by its light I could see that her face had turned from white to red. She walked quickly over to me and said in a voice shaking with excitement and alarm:

"Take me away from here, Mr. Marcel! Take me away at once! I would rather be with you than these men, these savages, these brutes! Nor is your life safe here!"

"They wear the British uniform. They must be loyal British soldiers," I could not keep from saying.

"I do not know what they are," she replied, with alarmed insistence, "but let's go. Pray take me at once."

She pulled at my shoulders as if she

luck stop at that. The abandoned horses, frightened by the report, neighed and stamped again, creating a great uproar.

The sentinel, who was the least drunk of the party, sprang to his feet. He was yet half dazed with sleep and liquor, but he saw the dim figures of a man and a woman riding away from the little encampment, and he knew that,

from sheer exhaustion.

The man never moved, but began to snore, and a second one yielded to exertion and whisky, and stretching himself out on the ground, went to instant sleep. "I do not know what they are," she replied, with alarmed insistence, "but let's go. Pray take me at once."

She pulled at my shoulders as if she

would have me rise and go on the instant.

"Untie my wrists," I said.

She tugged at the cords, but could do nothing. They were tied too tight.

"Take a knife from that drunken fool's belt," I said, indicating one of the men. "Don't be afraid. He won't wake."

She took the knife from the man's belt and cut my bonds. I rubbed my wrists together for a few minutes to take out the stiffness and to restore the circulation. Again she urged me to start without delay.

"Wait a minute," I said. "We must provide ourselves."

They had taken my arms from me when they bound me, and I recovered them, adding to my supply Crowder's pistol and some ammunition. Then I turned to the horses.

Old Put's great dark eyes flamed with approval and gladness. He had stood at his halter's length, watching the orgy and my rescue with attention and understanding.

"We'll bid farewell to these beasts now, old comrade," I said in a whisper, patting his nose.

He was too cautious to whinny a reply. The brown hack was near him, but I saw another among those belonging to the guerrillas which I fancied much more than he. I hastily changed Miss Howard's saddle to his back, assisted her to mount and sprang upon Old Put.

I turned the heads of our horses toward the northwest, but as the woods before us were dense and interlaced with wiry bushes and creeping vines we dared not attempt more than a walk. The horses stamped and neighed as we left them. The girl's mount stepped on a large, dry branch, which broke with a crack like a pistol shot. Nor did ill

according to the plans of Captain Crowder, it was not what should be. He fired a hasty pistol shot in our direction, the bullet clipping the dry twigs above our heads, and then shouted to his comrades to awake, giving emphasis to his cries with many sturdy kicks.

"Look out for your head!" I shouted to Miss Howard. "An untoward bough might prove fatal. And be sure you stay with me."

"I'll not leave you," she said.

He curved his long neck in the darkness and looked ahead with sharp brown eyes. I let the reins fall loose, and he wound about among the trees with a judgment that was never at fault. The other horse kept close at his side. Behind us we could hear the cries of the awakened men as they leaped upon their horses and rode after us, shouting to us to stop. Two or three more pistol shots were fired, but the air received them.

If the men could see at all, it was but dimly, though they could follow us by the hoof beats of our horses and the tearing of the vines and slapping of the bushes as we passed. They made such a prodigious cursing and swearing that we were never in any doubt as to where they were. I had a mind for a moment to send toward them a pistol ball which would stop their fuss, but I concluded that the more noise they made the better it would be for us, as it gave us exact warning of their approach. They did not seem to be gaining upon us, which was a satisfaction for the present. Out on the plain they would see us more distinctly, but I believed that our horses could leave them there.

I saw a beam of light shining through the latticework of the boughs and then

"Miss Howard," I said cheerfully and egotistically, "I congratulate you on the improvement in your company."

"At any rate, you are still a rebel with a rope around your neck."

"I seem to have been preferred to the British behind us, who do not have ropes around their necks, but deserve them. Remember that I ride with you at your own invitation."

"Then you consider me still your prisoner?"

"Oh, I am yours; but, whether one or the other, I am to be guided."

The men behind us were silent, and we were sure of gaining upon them. I could see their figures rising out of the plain in the misty gray light, gigantic and distorted in shape, and the thud, thud of their horses' hoofs, as regular as the ticking of a clock, came to our ears.

"Which way do we go?" asked the girl.

"To Morgan, of course."

"Then I shall soon be with my father and friends again."

"Why do you think so?"

"Because Tarleton will certainly take Morgan, and of course I shall be retaken."

She looked at me with much of the old sparkle and defiance and the absolute faith in British valor that British defeats seemed unable to shake. I was annoyed, and my patriotic pride was hurt.

"You seem to take it for granted that Tarleton will win if he should overtake Morgan."

"I do."

"Yet you have heard the news from King's Mountain?"

"A chance, an accident."

"The same chance, the same accident, may happen again."

"Never." I could not say her nay, for were we not retreating steadily before the advance of Tarleton, a retreat that seemed to all to be the part of wisdom, for again let it be said that we were fewer in numbers, far inferior in equipment, and more than half of our little army were raw troops, farmers! The exhilaration of the flight and escape disappeared for the time, and a heavy depression took its place.

The beams grew more numerous and fused into a broad shield of moonlight. Two minutes more and we would be out of the wood and into the cleared ground, with the fields racing behind us.

But the light had its evil for us. Against its broad silver disk we were silhouetted like the man in the moon, and the popping of pistols told us that we had become good targets. One bullet passed so close to my head that I thought it must have cut a lock of hair in its passage, and I took it as a warning to hurry.

She was riding well, and her expression was firm and courageous. We shook the reins against the necks of our horses, and taking the chances of bush and vine sped into the open as a volley of pistol shots whistled after us.

I uttered a shout half of pleasure, half of defiance, to our pursuers and bade Old Put show them what it was for a real horse to run his best. I had confidence, too, in the horse that the girl rode, for he was long limbed. He looked like a strong animal, and he certainly had a clean, fast gait that kept him alongside of Old Put.

I regarded our escape as assured, and the girl seemed to take a like view of the case. Relief showed in her eyes.

"UNTIE MY WRISTS." I SAID.

would have me rise and go on the instant.

"Untie my wrists," I said. She tugged at the cords, but could do nothing. They were tied too tight.

"Take a knife from that drunken fool's belt," I said, indicating one of the men. "Don't be afraid. He won't wake."

She took the knife from the man's belt and cut my bonds. I rubbed my wrists together for a few minutes to take out the stiffness and to restore the circulation. Again she urged me to start without delay.

They had taken my arms from me when they bound me, and I recovered them, adding to my supply Crowder's pistol and some ammunition. Then I turned to the horses.

Old Put's great dark eyes flamed with approval and gladness. He had stood at his halter's length, watching the orgy and my rescue with attention and understanding.

"We'll bid farewell to these beasts now, old comrade," I said in a whisper, patting his nose.

He was too cautious to whinny a reply. The brown hack was near him, but I saw another among those belonging to the guerrillas which I fancied much more than he. I hastily changed Miss Howard's saddle to his back, assisted her to mount and sprang upon Old Put.

I turned the heads of our horses toward the northwest, but as the woods before us were dense and interlaced with wiry bushes and creeping vines we dared not attempt more than a walk. The horses stamped and neighed as we left them. The girl's mount stepped on a large, dry branch, which broke with a crack like a pistol shot. Nor did it

according to the plans of Captain Crowder, it was not what should be. He fired a hasty pistol shot in our direction, the bullet clipping the dry twigs above our heads, and then shouted to his comrades to awake, giving emphasis to his cries with many sturdy kicks.

"Look out for your head!" I shouted to Miss Howard. "An untoward bough might prove fatal. And be sure you stay with me."

"I'll not leave you," she said. "Now, Old Put," I said, "lead us out of this."

He curved his long neck in the darkness and looked ahead with sharp brown eyes. I let the reins fall loose, and he wound about among the trees with a judgment that was never at fault. The other horse kept close at his side. Behind us we could hear the cries of the awakened men as they leaped upon their horses and rode after us, shouting to us to stop. Two or three more pistol shots were fired, but the air received them.

If the men could see at all, it was but dimly, though they could follow us by the hoof beats of our horses and the tearing of the vines and slapping of the bushes as we passed. They made such a prodigious cursing and swearing that we were never in any doubt as to where they were. I had a mind for a moment to send toward them a pistol ball which would stop their fuss, but I concluded that the more noise they made the better it would be for us, as it gave us exact warning of their approach. They did not seem to be gaining upon us, which was a satisfaction for the present. Out on the plain they would see us more distinctly, but I believed that our horses could leave them there.

ed, and about an hour afterward a terrific report was heard.
It was another explosion, and grave fears were entertained for the party. Members of the party stumbled over the body of McCune and further on found the body of Taylor Gunsaulus. Some of the members were detailed to take them back.

DORMAN "PEACHED"

Described the Entry to the House and Murder—Intimated That Jack Biddle Did the Shooting.

Pittsburg, June 12.—During the course of the Kahney murder trial Walter Dorman described the entry into the house for the purpose of robbery, and the murder of Thomas Kahney. During his testimony, in part, he said that on the night of the murder he joined the Biddle boys at 10:15 o'clock. They went around to a lot in the rear of the store, and waited several hours in a dark lot for the lights to go out.

He saw a woman upstairs, but waited until about 12 o'clock and then made a survey of the premises. After boring two holes in the shutter with a brace and bit, while standing on the fence, he sprang the latch with a wire and swung open the shutter. All this time Jack Biddle was on the ground. Dorman identified the brace and bit used on that occasion. He raised the window and entered, followed by Ed and Jack Biddle.

They tried to chloroform all the inmates from the door with an atomizer he had made, but gave that up and entered the room.
"We stepped inside," said Dorman. "I passed to the head of the bed and pressed it to a woman's face. She started to scream and continued. Edward Biddle covered the boy in bed with one revolver. A man started in the room. I was standing with my back to the door, holding Mrs. Kahney, when the shot was fired."

Dorman told of a scrap of conversation which passed between the two brothers concerning the shooting. Edward Biddle said to John, "By— you might have shot me, Jack." This was said after they got out of the house and were speeding along Boggs avenue.

After they got out of the house by means of the window they tried to get away from the scene, taking to the country. They got lost and Edward Biddle made inquiry of a man whom Dorman did not see plainly, as to their whereabouts. They came to a school house, where there were directions, "three and a half miles to Carnegie," but got to the street car track about 6 o'clock in the morning. They got on the car and came to Market street and Fifth avenue, where they took a Bedford avenue car, arriving home about 7 o'clock.

The cross-examination seemed intended to try and prove that Dorman was the planner of the gang's operations and the Biddle boys his dupes.

TRACKMEN ON STRIKE.

Out on Maine Central—Canadian Pacific Grants Conference.
Montreal, June 12.—Grand President Wilson, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America, sent an ultimatum to President Shaughnessy, of the Canadian Pacific railway, demanding a conference on the subject of an increase of wages for the trackmen of the company and giving him until noon Tuesday for a reply. About five minutes to 12 Tuesday Mr. Shaughnessy replied, fixing a conference for today.

Portland, Me., June 12.—The strike of the track and fuel men on all lines of the Maine Central railroad was fully under way and nearly all of the members of the eight divisions of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America in this state and New Hampshire had turned over their keys to the station agents nearest their sections, notifying their roadmasters that they are no longer responsible for the property heretofore in their charge.
The main purpose of the strike is to obtain recognition for the Brotherhood officials by the railroad company. It will be pursued in conjunction with and on the same lines as the strike which is now in progress on the Canadian Pacific railroad.

PROMINENT MEN DELEGATES.

Gen. Joe Wheeler, Lord Kinnard, J. R. Mote and Others—Rev. Dr. Hall Preached a Sermon—Series of Prayers Heard.

Boston, June 12.—A great congregation greeted President Edwin I. Shuey, of Dayton, O., as he called to order the international jubilee convention of the Young Men's Christian association in Mechanics' building. From all over the globe the delegates had come, bringing with them individual enthusiasm in the great work for young men. The big hall was radiant with color, while standards on the floor told the location of state delegations and the seats of distinguished men from other countries and lands.

The opening exercises were quite brief. President Shuey not making preliminary remarks, but asking the gathering to join in singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."
The next service was held in Trinity church and Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, D. D., of New York, preached the sermon.

William E. Dodge, of New York, presided at the evening meeting last night in Mechanics' hall, when the state and city welcomes were delivered. The principal address was by General McCook, of New York.
A unique feature of the evening service was heard in a series of prayers, some of which had been specially written for the occasion by the Rev. Dr. Hall, of New York, who recited them.

The singing of a hymn and a prayer offered by the Right Rev. Lord Bishop of Huron closed the service.
Among the distinguished delegates who reached this city were General Joseph Wheeler, of Alabama; Andre Siegfried, of the Y. M. C. A. of Paris; Lord Kinnard, of Scotland; J. R. Mote, the traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; H. DeG. Waidegrave, W. H. Mills and J. H. Putterill, prominent in connection with the London branch of the association, and others who were at the convention in Montreal this week.

MRS. M'KINLEY IMPROVED.

Was Able to Sit Up Again on Tuesday—Doctors Issued a Favorable Report.
Washington, June 12.—Mrs. McKinley's condition continued to improve Tuesday. Last night Surgeon General Sternberg, after his usual visit about 8:30, said:
Mrs. McKinley is improving slowly but steadily. Everything now is favorable. She sat up in bed for a while again today."

The president went out for a long drive Tuesday afternoon, his companion being Mr. James Barber, Sr., of Canton, O., who arrived Tuesday morning, and left on an early train last evening.
The calls of friends to express sympathy and make personal inquiries as to Mrs. McKinley's condition continue. Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis last evening was among the number, in addition to those who have made almost daily calls.

SOME NEWS IN BRIEF.
Director of Public Works E. M. Bigelow took charge of the affairs of the department, in Pittsburg.
Mail advices from China report the foundering of a Chinese passenger boat bound from Chusan for Ning Pow. Of the 68 passengers aboard the vessel at the time of the disaster 59 were drowned.
The Liverpool Daily Post printed a report that on Saturday last Mrs. Botha, wife of the Boer commandant general, held a secret interview with Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.
Mrs. Nellie Alma, of Chardon, O., became insane and died from overwork. For about 10 years she had been engaged as a painter and paper hanger. She earned enough to purchase a home for herself and her husband, who is 82 years old.

At Kansas City, Mo., formal welcoming exercises to the nobles of the Mystic Shrine were held in the Standard theater. Mayor Reed delivered an address of welcome, to which Imperial Potentate Windsor replied. San Francisco and Saratoga want the next convention.

SCHEME OF YERKES.

Chicago Man Will Light London's Underground With Electricity.
The New York World's London correspondent recently saw Charles Yerkes, who has just returned from a brief holiday to resume work upon his schemes to furnish London with rapid transit. Personally Mr. Yerkes was reticent, but he authorized one of his lieutenants to make the following statement:
"Mr. Yerkes' principal plan is to change the Metropolitan District railway's motive power from steam to electricity. At present the tunnel is dark and filled with noisome gases from the locomotives. Mr. Yerkes will change all this.
"His plans are prepared for the erection of an electric station on the Thames at Chelsea to supply the power. The walls of the tunnel will be painted white, and are lamps will be placed at regular intervals, and the odors will be banished. While he was away on his visit to America, Mr. Yerkes organized the Metropolitan District Electric Traction company, with a capital of $5,000,000, all of which was taken by him and his friends.

"He has other extensive schemes in view. The meeting of the stockholders of the Metropolitan District company to pass on Mr. Yerkes' schemes will soon be held, and as Mr. Yerkes and his friends now hold a controlling interest in the stock a transfer will be effected at once."

Roses and Turks.

"It would give a genuine and religious Turk a fit if he saw how little appreciation Americans show for the rose and what little reverence they have for it," spoke a florist as he wrapped the foil about the stems of a bouquet.
"The rose is beyond question the prettiest flower that blooms, and it was so considered by the Turks many years before the conquest of Granada. There is a religious legend generally believed in throughout Turkey that the red rose sprang from a drop of the great prophet Mohammed's blood. Everything beautiful in nature is ascribed to him. The Turks, therefore, have great reverence for the flower and allow it to bloom and die untouched, except on state occasions and for the purpose of making rosewater."

"After the conquest by the Turks they would not worship in any church until the walls were cleansed and washed with rosewater and thus purified by the blood of the prophet. It is used on the body for the same purpose. A Turk whose conscience is stung by some act or deed he has committed will caress and pay reverence to the rose to appease the wrath of the prophet and Allah.
"With these ideas inculcated in him from youth it would shock him severely to see the pretty flower strewn in the path of a bridal couple, thrown on the public stage or barked up in hundreds at a swell reception or party to be crushed and spoiled in an evening."

The Erring One.

It is impossible for one who never goes wrong nor makes a mistake nor commits a blunder to know just how to be sorry for an erring one. We must stumble ourselves before we can really judge of the hardships of a rough road and the frailty of weary feet. True character is first tender, then hopeful and afterward reformatory.—Exchange.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. With her whole being undergoing a change, the seeds of female troubles are sown. Little menstrual disorders, if neglected at the time, will follow the woman all her life and grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are robbing homes and filling graveyards, proves this. Yet, irregular and painful menstruation are often permitted to go on, sapping the life and energy, while Wine of Cardui, the positive relief for these ills, is on the shelf of every drug store. Wine of Cardui helps the maiden sustain the shock of puberty by inducing a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Wine of Cardui is an emmenagogue of great power, and works wonders in strengthening the delicate and sensitive female organs. Many young women owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. No woman should give up hope until she has given Wine of Cardui a trial. If thousands have secured relief through it, why not you?

WINE OF CARDUI

I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time; was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything; in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui with Black-Draught when needed and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me.

The official list of the dead and injured was made public by the coal company. It is as follows:

- Charles McCaffrey, superintendent Soper mine, badly burned in explosion.
- Nance Setler, roadman, injured explosion Monday night.
- Michael McCullough, burned about face, arms and body.
- Thomas Gleason, of Smithton, died by explosion.

Investigating the Cause.

That caused the explosion and loss of life is something the mine inspectors of the Ninth and Eleventh districts spent some time trying to find out.

Officials of the coal company are that none but regulation mine lamps were used, while others are of opinion that one of the men carried a light match, which ignited the gas.

It was ascertained that for several men have been at work in mine No. 2, where the first explosion happened, erecting cribbing between entrance and entry No. 21.

One of the cribbing had been in position, and it was while this work that Peeples, Davenport and Daly met death.

The explosion was a terrific one and only three hours after it happened entered the shaft. One of the boys of the company started in shaft No. 1, located on the Baltimore and Ohio side of the Youngstown river, traveled 520 feet under river to shaft No. 2, and then traveled nearly 2,000 feet to the shaft where the four men had last been.

Found Four Bodies.

Four were found together, and efforts were made to bring them out, but the fire damp was too strong for the rescuers, and they had to return for the shaft, which they entered in safety.

On arrival at the top of the shaft rescuers reported to Superintendent William McCune that the men dead, and it would be folly to the mine at that time and risk lives to bring out dead bodies, but when the mine was in such a dangerous condition.

Superintendent McCune, loved the men, asked for volunteers, 7 men responded, five of whom reached the open air, while the other two were slowly smothered or suffocated, and until the fire damped down, the men in the mine must wait to ascertain how can be found of the end of the shaft.

When mine Inspector Bernard Root, accompanied by seven men, entered the shaft and started upon investigating tour of the mine, men gave the signal to be lowered.

It was another explosion, and grave fears were entertained for the party. Members of the party stumbled over the body of McCune and further on found the body of Taylor Gunsaulus. Some of the members were detailed to take them back.

The whole party had a terrible experience and were unable to get the bodies of Taylor Gunsaulus, Sr., and Superintendent McCune out, but another party went back and got them.

DORMAN "PEACHED"

Described the Entry to the House and Murder—Intimated That Jack Biddle Did the Shooting.

Pittsburg, June 12.—During the course of the Kahney murder trial Walter Dorman described the entry into the house for the purpose of robbery, and the murder of Thomas Kahney. During his testimony, in part, he said that on the night of the murder he joined the Biddle boys at 10:15 o'clock. They went around to a lot in the rear of the store, and waited several hours in a dark lot for the lights to go out.

He saw a woman upstairs, but waited until about 12 o'clock and then made a survey of the premises. After boring two holes in the shutter with a brace and bit, while standing on the fence, he sprang the latch with a wire and swung open the shutter. All this time Jack Biddle was on the ground. Dorman identified the brace and bit used on that occasion. He raised the window and entered, followed by Ed and Jack Biddle.

"We stepped inside," said Dorman. "I passed to the head of the bed and pressed it to a woman's face. She started to scream and continued. Edward Biddle covered the boy in bed with one revolver. A man started in the room. I was standing with my back to the door, holding Mrs. Kahney, when the shot was fired."

Dorman told of a scrap of conversation which passed between the two brothers concerning the shooting. Edward Biddle said to John, "By—, you might have shot me, Jack." This was said after they got out of the house and were speeding along Boggs avenue.

After they got out of the house by means of the window they tried to get away from the scene, taking to the country. They got lost and Edward Biddle made inquiry of a man whom Dorman did not see plainly, as to their whereabouts. They came to a school house, where there were directions, "three and a half miles to Carnegie," but got to the street car track about 6 o'clock in the morning. They got on the car and came to Market street and Fifth avenue, where they took a Bedford avenue car, arriving home about 7 o'clock.

TRACKMEN ON STRIKE.

Out on Maine Central—Canadian Pacific Grants Concession.

Montreal, June 12.—Grand President Wilson, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America, sent an ultimatum to President Shaughnessy, of the Canadian Pacific railway, demanding a conference on the subject of an increase of wages for the trackmen of the company and giving him until noon Tuesday for a reply. About five minutes to 12 Tuesday Mr. Shaughnessy replied, fixing a conference for today.

Portland, Me., June 12.—The strike of the track and fuel men on all lines of the Maine Central railroad was fully under way and nearly all of the members of the eight divisions of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America in this state and New Hampshire had turned over their keys to the station agents nearest their sections, notifying their roadmasters that they are no longer responsible for the property hertofore in their charge.

The main purpose of the strike is to obtain recognition for the Brotherhood officials by the railroad company. It will be pursued in conjunction with and on the same lines as the strike which is now in progress on the Canadian Pacific railroad.

PROMINENT MEN DELEGATES.

Gen. Joe Wheeler, Lord Kinnard, J. R. Mote and Others—Rev. Dr. Hall Preached a Sermon—Series of Prayers Heard.

Boston, June 12.—A great congregation greeted President Edwin I. Shuey, of Dayton, O., as he called to order the international jubilee convention of the Young Men's Christian association in Mechanics' building. From all over the globe the delegates had come, bringing with them individual enthusiasm in the great work for young men. The big hall was radiant with color, while standards on the floor told the location of state delegations and the seats of distinguished men from other countries and lands.

The opening exercises were quite brief, President Shuey not making preliminary remarks, but asking the gathering to join in singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."

The next service was held in Trinity church and Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, D. D., of New York, preached the sermon.

William E. Dodge, of New York, presided at the evening meeting last night in Mechanics' hall, when the state and city welcomes were delivered. The principal address was by General McCook, of New York.

A unique feature of the evening service was heard in a series of prayers, some of which had been specially written for the occasion by the Rev. Dr. Hall, of New York, who recited them.

Among the distinguished delegates who reached this city were General Joseph Wheeler, of Alabama; Andre Siegfried, of the Y. M. C. A. of Paris; Lord Kinnard, of Scotland; J. R. Mote, the traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; H. DeG. Waldegrave, W. H. Mills and J. H. Putterill, prominent in connection with the London branch of the association, and others who were at the convention in Montreal this week.

MRS. M'KINLEY IMPROVED.

Was Able to Sit Up Again on Tuesday—Doctors Issued a Favorable Report.

Washington, June 12.—Mrs. McKinley's condition continued to improve Tuesday. Last night Surgeon General Sternberg, after his usual visit about 8:30, said:

Mrs. McKinley is improving slowly but steadily. Everything now is favorable. She sat up in bed for a while again today.

The president went out for a long drive Tuesday afternoon, his companion being Mr. James Barber, Sr., of Canton, O., who arrived Tuesday morning, and left on an early train last evening.

The calls of friends to express sympathy and make personal inquiries as to Mrs. McKinley's condition continue. Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis last evening was among the number, in addition to those who have made at most daily calls.

SOME NEWS IN BRIEF.

Director of Public Works E. M. Bigelow took charge of the affairs of the department, in Pittsburg.

Mail advices from China report the foundering of a Chinese passenger boat bound from Chusan for Ning Pow. Of the 68 passengers aboard the vessel at the time of the disaster 59 were drowned.

The Liverpool Daily Post printed a report that on Saturday last Mrs. Botha, wife of the Boer commandant general, held a secret interview with Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.

Mrs. Nellie Alma, of Chardon, O., became insane and died from overwork. For about 10 years she had been engaged as a painter and paper hanger. She earned enough to purchase a home for herself and her husband, who is 82 years old.

At Kansas City, Mo., formal welcoming exercises to the nobles of the Mystic Shrine were held in the Standard theater. Mayor Reed delivered an address of welcome, to which Imperial Potentate Windsor replied. San Francisco and Saratoga want the next convention.

The presbytery of Pittsburg, which met in the Bellefield Presbyterian church, Pittsburg, considered a number of matters of great interest to the denomination in this section. Rev. Dr. G. W. Chalfant, of the Park Avenue church, and Rev. R. P. Miller, of Homestead, were relieved.

The conference between the manufacturers and the wage committee of the Flint Glass Workers' union began in the Stevenson building, Pittsburg. Before the meeting the wage committee of the workers held a preliminary conference at the headquarters of the union.

The details of the murder of Lee Felty, about 15 miles from Ashland, Ky., have been received. Felty was a consumptive. His slayer, Edward Shaffer, is said to have taken a shotgun and gone to Felty's home. The sick man came to the fence and the two talked for a time in a friendly manner. Then Shaffer accused Felty of having talked about him. Felty denied the charge, and said he would face his accusers if they were brought to him. Shaffer, it is said, cocked both barrels of his gun and said, "You can't face this gun," firing both barrels and tearing off Felty's head. Shaffer fled and is in hiding in the mountains, while a posse is searching for him.

SCHEME OF YERKES.

Chicago Man Will Light London's Underground With Electricity.

The New York World's London correspondent recently saw Charles Yerkes, who has just returned from a brief holiday to resume work upon his schemes to furnish London with rapid transit. Personally Mr. Yerkes was reticent, but he authorized one of his lieutenants to make the following statement:

"Mr. Yerkes' principal plan is to change the Metropolitan District railway's motive power from steam to electricity. At present the tunnel is dark and filled with noisome gases from the locomotives. Mr. Yerkes will change all this.

"His plans are prepared for the erection of an electric station on the

CHARLES YERKES.

Thames at Chelsea to supply the power. The walls of the tunnel will be painted white, and arc lamps will be placed at regular intervals, and the odors will be banished. While he was away on his visit to America, Mr. Yerkes organized the Metropolitan District Electric Traction company, with a capital of $5,000,000, all of which was taken by him and his friends.

"He has other extensive schemes in view. The meeting of the stockholders of the Metropolitan District company to pass on Mr. Yerkes' schemes will soon be held, and as Mr. Yerkes and his friends now hold a controlling interest in the stock a transfer will be effected at once."

Roses and Turks.

"It would give a genuine and religious Turk a fit if he saw how little appreciation Americans show for the rose and what little reverence they have for it," spoke a florist as he wrapped the fall about the stems of a bouquet.

"The rose is beyond question the prettiest flower that blooms, and it was so considered by the Turks many years before the conquest of Granada. There is a religious legend generally believed in throughout Turkey that the red rose sprang from a drop of the great prophet Mohammed's blood. Everything beautiful in nature is ascribed to him. The Turks, therefore, have great reverence for the flower and allow it to bloom and die untouched, except on state occasions and for the purpose of making rosewater.

"After the conquest by the Turks they would not worship in any church until the walls were cleansed and washed with rosewater and thus purified by the blood of the prophet. It is used on the body for the same purpose. A Turk whose conscience is stung by some act or deed he has committed will caress and pay reverence to the rose to appease the wrath of the prophet and Allah.

"With these ideas inculcated in him from youth it would shock him severely to see the pretty flower strewn in the path of a bridal couple, thrown on the public stage or barked up in hundreds at a swell reception or party to be crushed and spoiled in an evening."

The Erring One.

It is impossible for one who never goes wrong nor makes a mistake nor commits a blunder to know just how to be sorry for an erring one. We must stumble ourselves before we can really judge of the hardships of a rough road and the frailty of weary feet. True character is first tender, then hopeful and afterward reformatory.—Exchange.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. With her whole being undergoing a change, the seeds of female troubles are sown. Little menstrual disorders, if neglected at the time, will follow the woman all her life and grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are robbing homes and filling graveyards, proves this. Yet, irregular and painful menstruation are often permitted to go on, sapping the life and energy, while Wine of Cardui, the positive relief for these ills, is on the shelf of every drug store. Wine of Cardui helps the maiden sustain the shock of puberty by inducing a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Wine of Cardui is an emmenagogue of great power, and works wonders in strengthening the delicate and sensitive female organs. Many young women owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. No woman should give up hope until she has given Wine of Cardui a trial. If thousands have secured relief through it, why not you?

I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time; was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything; in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui with Black-Draught when needed and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me.

FOOLED THEIR FRIENDS

Justice McLane Accommodated a Couple Who Wished to Be Married in Private.

Miss Blanche Headley and Mr. Joseph Galloway, both of this city and well and favorably known, were married last night at 10 o'clock by Justice McLane.

The couple, through a well-laid plan of the 'squire, succeeded in outwitting a number of their friends, who are members of the Carroll club. The crowd—about 20 in number—collected at the office of the justice, expecting the ceremony to take place there. The magistrate, by a clever ruse, succeeded in piloting the prospective bride and groom into the office of an attorney in the same building without being observed. The ceremony then took place without molestation, much to the chagrin of those who desired to witness the proceeding.

Mr. and Mrs. Galloway will make their home in East Liverpool.

FOOLED THEIR FRIENDS

Justice McLane Accommodated a Couple Who Wanted to Be Married in Private.

Miss Blanche Headley and Mr. Joseph Galloway, both of this city and well and favorably known, were married last night at 10 o'clock by Justice McLane.

The couple, through a well-laid plan of the 'squire, succeeded in outwitting a number of their friends, who are members of the Carroll club. The crowd—about 20 in number—collected at the office of the justice, expecting the ceremony to take place there. The magistrate, by a clever ruse, succeeded in piloting the prospective bride and groom into the office of an attorney in the same building without being observed. The ceremony then took place without molestation, much to the chagrin of those who desired to witness the proceeding.

Mr. and Mrs. Galloway will make their home in East Liverpool.

A Bolt Hits a Street Car, But Only the Arrester Suffers.

Street car No. 35 was struck by lightning at the East End loop during the storm yesterday afternoon and the lightning arrester was burned out. There was only one passenger on the car at the time and no one was even shocked. No damage was done except the burning of the arrester.

TILT BETWEEN MEMBERS MADE COUNCIL LIVELY

Dr. Marshall and Councilman
McLane Indulge in Verbal Sparring.

The Hospital Association Granted
the Use of the Old

BRADSHAW AVENUE MATTER

Again Comes Up And the Assessing
Ordinance Is Passed — Prospect
Street Property Owners Likely to Have Improvements.

Dr. R. J. Marshall had his fighting
clothes with him at the meeting of
council last night. Though he did not
get properly warmed up until the session was almost finished, he made up
for the delay, and what he did to Councilman McLane was a great sufficiency.
His remarks were bombastic while
they lasted and the spectators thoroughly enjoyed the speech.

The fun was started when McLane
took the floor to make a plea in be-
half of a number of residents of Lis-
bon road, near the outskirts of the
been graded several property owners
on the north side of the thoroughfare
had been left in midair with no means
of getting down onto the street with-
out climbing or rolling over the steep
ledge. He thought a pair of steps
should be built on a certain alley,
which he could not name or locate,
so that the residents of the district he
referred to would have a means of
getting to and from their homes.

In concluding his remarks McLane
said it was a shame that the matter
had been so long delayed, and incidentally stated that if the property
owners along Pennsylvania avenue
had been handicapped as those of Lis-
bon road had, they would long ago have
been relieved. This remark was what
stirred up Dr. Marshall, and he immediately took the floor.

"Mr. President," he began, "if there
is anything I detest it is to hear some-
body continually bawling, and I feel
that the gentleman who just completed the speech needs a good calling
down. If the residents in the vicinity
of where he designated fail to get every little whim satisfied, or even have
a peach tree skinned, McLane must
bawl, and I am getting tired of it."
The doctor had not fairly seated him-
self after his speech until McLane was
on the floor and went for the gentle-
man. The controversy continued until the proposition relative to the
building of the steps was referred to
the street committee.

McLane again took the floor and stated that he desired to "bawl" some-
more. He then took up the matter of the building of a foot bridge from Chestnut to Eighth street. Almost every member of council took part in a
discussion of the question, with the
result the street committee was instructed to take the matter in charge.
When the meeting was called to order
Mr. Cripps was absent, but made
his appearance later on. The reading
of the minutes took up much time,
after which unfinished business was
looked after. On motion by Marshall
the rules were suspended and the ordinances fixing grades on Elizabeth,
Grant and Walter streets and Walter
alley were placed on final reading and
passed.

The Bradshaw avenue assessing ordinance was placed on its third read-
ing and passed without a dissenting
vote. A communication from Mrs. Jennie Kail, who is a property owner on
that thoroughfare, was read, stating
that she would be willing to pay $300
for her share of the assessment. The
figures of the engineer show that Mrs.
Kail's expense according to the width
of the frontage of her property would
amount to $692. This caused the solons to do a little calculating. Bullock
thought the city should be willing to pay the difference between Mrs. Kail's
figures and the real cost of the improvement in front of her property.
The proposition was argued at length,
and the clerk finally instructed to with-
hold publication of the ordinance until an investigation had been made.
A petition was read from property
owners in the Starkey addition, ask-
ing for grade lines to be established
in a certain alley. The engineer was
instructed to do the work.
The employees of the city street department submitted a communication

which was read by the clerk, asking
that the action taken at the last meet-
ing of council relative to the ordinance
regulating the wages of the street laborers be reconsidered.

Dr. Marshall made a speech in which
he strongly advocated that the ordinance be again taken up, and this was
finally done with the result that it
was passed. On motion by Mr. Bullock the ordinance was amended so
that the commissioner is instructed to
employ veterans of the Civil war when-
ever possible. The street laborers
will now receive $1.75 instead of $1.50
per day.

The report of Mayor Davidson for
the month ending June 11 showed that $151 had been collected for fines and
licenses. Fire Chief Morley's report
showed that the department had been
called out four times on account of
ambulance calls.

A resolution was read from the members of the Hospital association, ask-
ing the city to lease four lots owned
at the old cemetery at the foot of Sixth street to the association for a
site for the building of the contemplated hospital. Cripps asked about
the deed for the property and Mar-
shall explained that he had temporary
possession of the deed. The resolution was passed, all members of council voting in favor of it.

The association is to pay $1 a year
for each lot as long as the land is used
for hospital purposes.

A bill which had been presented
by the Crockery City Brewing company for $265.36 was considered. The
amount was for the payment of a
sewer on Tanyard run which had been built by the company. It was placed
on the payroll.

The bill of $23.35 which James Rine-
hart presented to council some time
ago, which he claimed for damages sustained by reason of his dray wagon
having been upset owing to the bad
condition of the road at the power
house was turned down and the same
referred to the street railway company.

The bill for street lights, amount-
ing to $691.29, was brought up and
criticized, as usual. The police had only reported "outrage" to the extent
of 60 cents, and the city solons, with
few exceptions, registered a kick.
They said the police weren't attending properly to the work of keeping
tab on the different lights about town.
The light committee was instructed to Clerk Hanley stated that notes in
the city banks to the amount of $40,- 000 were due. He was instructed to have them renewed.

The pay ordinance was passed, after
which a resolution from the board of
health was read, asking that sewers
in different parts of the city be looked
after. McLane was asked to report
concerning the proposed meeting of
the sewer commissioners. He said
that one of the members had been
as yet. They will meet later, when
them.

An ordinance fixing grade lines of Boyce street was passed under suspension of rules. A request from property owners of Ogden street, asking
that a grade be established on that
thoroughfare was favorably acted on.

A communication was read from B.
A. Ormes, in which he notified council
that travel on his property at the
Dry Run bridge would have to cease,
or a damage suit would result. Team-
sters have encroached on Mr. Ormes'
premises owing to the impassable condition of the road leading up to the
approaches of the bridge. Mr. Mar-
shall said he would confer with the
writer of the communication in an effort to induce him to be calm for a
while, at least.

Marshall spoke concerning the intention of the street railway company
to build a trestle along the road leading up to the Dry Run bridge. He
said that the property owners in that
section were protesting, and he
thought the company should be re-
strained from building the trestle un-
less they agreed to fill and grade the
roadbed of their tracks as soon as possible. Thomas said it was the intention of the company to make the fill
and that the trestle would be only
temporarily in use.

Nice said that Mr. Healy had informed him that the fill would be
made in the near future, but Marshall
was inclined to believe that an understanding should be had with Mr.
Healy before permission was granted
for the building of the trestle. The

Patrol Made Four Runs And Each
Time a Victim of the Flowing
Bowl Was Picked Up.

The mayor's docket this morning
showed four new cases for last night
and this morning, and all victims but
one had enough money to pay their
fines. The mayor and the chief both
month of June would be a record-
breaker.

Cross Kerr was taken in tow early
last evening. Officer Stafford found
him on West Walnut street in a deplorable state of drunkenness. He
was lifted bodily into the patrol and
taken to jail. This morning the mayor
fined Kerr $1 and costs. He was
"broke" and yet lingers behind the
bars.

A. K. Adams fell into the hands of Officer Dawson, and the patrol took
him to the bastille. This morning Adams pleaded guilty to drunkenness
securing his liberty.

Robert Hogue allowed liquor to get
the upper hand of him and was arrested for drunkenness by Officer Ma-
honey. The patrol conveyed the victim to the lockup and by paying $1
and costs this morning he was allowed
to go.

Thomas McKeever was in bad shape
this morning and sleepy from the effects of an all-night debauch, he lay
down on the pavement on Union
street to rest himself. Patrolman
Woods interrupted the siesta and with
the assistance of the patrol landed
the sleeper in jail, where he finished
his nap. Then the mayor relieved McKeever of $5.00 and turned him
loose.

None of the victims of the raid of Tuesday morning, who were unable
to pay their fines, have as yet succeeded in so doing. Richard Walker
and wife will go to Canton on the
morning train if they do not make the
necessary raise today.

BEEBOUT-POULTON

ried at the parsonage of the First M.

last evening. They will reside here,

STORM DAMAGE WAS EXTENSIVE

At Sebring Buildings Partially
Wholly Demolished.

WASHOUTS ON THE C. & P.

Held Up Trains on the River Division
for Many Hours—Lightning Gave
an East End Family a Close Call.
Gas Main Broken.

Sebring, June 12.—The storm which
passed over this town last evening was
a destructive one, the wind doing a
great deal of damage.

A half completed addition to J. M.
McIntosh's store room was blown
down and the loss to the owners will
be considerable.

The roof of the machine shop was
blown away and other damage done to
the plant that will take some time to repair.

A new six-room dwelling being
erected by the Sebrings had reached
a point in its erection where its was
ready for the siding. It was completely demolished and it will be nec-
work.

Orchards and shade trees suffered
to some extent, while the rain which
came down in torrents caused damage
to cellar walls and drains. The storm
town.

RAILROAD TRAINS.

Earth.

The storm yesterday did considerable damage to the river division of
the C. & P. railroad. At Empire a
culvert became clogged and the water
washed the tracks out, besides covering it for 150 feet with about 10 feet
of earth.

The same thing occurred between Empire and Port Homer, the track being covered for about 100 feet. A short distance this side of Port Homer the track was also covered, but
it was not quite so bad. Train No. 360,
running from Bellaire to Pittsburg,
due here at 4:06, did not pass this city
until almost 3 o'clock this morning
and No. 340 this morning was delayed

GAS SHUT OFF

A Break in the Main Due to the Storm
Caused Embar-
rassment.

An extensive washout just below
Empire yesterday afternoon caused a
break in the Fort Pitt Gas company's
main and the supply in this company's
lines in this city and Wellsville was
shut off from 5 o'clock last evening
until 9 o'clock this morning.

A large force of men were put to
work refilling the washouts as soon
as the break occurred.
as the break occurred and the work
was carried on all night. The main
was finally connected at about 9
o'clock this morning.

A Tree In Front of an East Liverpool
Yesterday.

A large shade tree in front of the residence of Henry Herbert in the East End, was struck by lightning
during the storm yesterday afternoon.
Several members of the family were
standing on the front porch when the
tree was struck. No one was injured,
but all were slightly dazed by the
shock.

WORKERS BACK IN THEIR OLD
PLACES TODAY.

The Two Employees Who Were Laid
Off Have Voluntarily
Resigned.

The laundry workers employed at
the Woodbine Laundry returned to
work this morning, a settlement having been effected last evening.

The terms of the settlement as
given out by President McLane, of Trades Council, who had charge of
the affairs of the union, are that the
two employees who had been laid off
Saturday, and by reason of which action the members of the union refused
to work until they were reinstated,
should be given the option of either
returning to work with the understanding that they continue for the
customary two weeks' notice or quit
outright. They chose the latter and
the remainder of the employees returned to work this morning.

A reporter was summoned to the Woodbine this morning, where he was
met by a committee of the laundry
workers. They made the statement
that the information given out yester-
day was not authorized by them. Although the union had held a meeting
yesterday, at the close of which the
had been exaggerated and had been
prompted by a spirit of spite. They
think in fairness to themselves and
the firm it is proper that this statement be made, as it is their desire that
the relations with their employers be
of the most cordial nature.

WORSTED.

A Man Named Maguire Gave the Sa-
Him Badly.

Patrick Fitzpatrick, a Wellsville saloon keeper, is alleged to have insult-
ed a railroad shop employe named Maguire about 1 o'clock this afternoon.
Maguire pitched into him, gave him a
sound drubbing and cut him severely
about the face with a razor.

Fitzpatrick was so used up that he
was taken up town in a street railway
express car.

Dynamite Charges at Last Brought
Up Young O'Reilly's
Remains.

The report which became circula-
ted last night of the finding of the
body of Patrick O'Reilly, the lad who
was drowned Monday evening near
the ferry landing at Newell's, is incorrect.

A party of men went to the scene of
the drowning this afternoon with 15
dynamite cartridges, which were
shot off in the water.

It is believed by many persons that
young O'Reilly's body is fastened
among the rocks near the spot where
he sank. The river bottom is very
stony at this point and the water un-
young O'Reilly's body was fastened
usually deep.

Bottle.

HIS ASSAILANT UNDER ARREST

The Trouble the Outgrowth of a Dis-
And Mardis Engaged—Mardis Lay
in Wait for His Victim.

William Higginson, of this city, lies
unconscious at the home of his son
in Wellsville, with his skull fractured.
He may not recover.

Mr. Higginson was the victim of a
brutal and cowardly assault at the saloon run by him and his son in Wells-
ville at 8:30 last night. His assailant,
Charles W. Mardis, is in jail. Bail
was refused him until the result of Higginson's injuries is known.

According to information gathered
in Wellsville today, Mardis was in Higginson's place last evening, playing cards with William Higginson, Jr.,
when a dispute arose and the two
were soon engaged in an altercation.
Young Higginson is alleged to have
struck Mardis. Mr. Higginson, Sr.,
then interfered and ordered Mardis
out.

Mardis left, vowing vengeance. He
went around through the passage way
and hid in the dark at the rear of the saloon. When Mr. Higginson went to
the back door at closing time and
opened it, he was struck full in the
face by a missile that was hurled at
him, knocked down and rendered un-
conscious.

It is said that the wound in Higgin-
son's head was caused by a beer bottle, which struck him in the forehead
over the right eye. Others maintain
that a heavier weapon must have been
used, to deal so severe a blow, and
that Mr. Higginson was hit with a piece of iron. It appears probable
that he was mistaken for his son and
got the blow intended for him.

Hearing the crash the sons of Mr.
Higginson, Fred and William, rushed
to his assistance. They found him
bleeding from a terrible gash and in
an unconscious state. With as much
haste as possible he was removed to
the home of Fred Higginson, on Fourth and Front streets, and Drs.
Holland, Tarr and Hutchinson sum-
moned.

The physicians labored many hours
with the injured man. After removing at least 10 pieces of bone from
the wound, they left the injured man
resting comfortably, but weak from
the loss of blood.

Today the physicians said that with
absolute quiet the patient might recover. They admit, however, that his
condition is precarious and that complications might easily arise that
would result fatally.

The whole town of Wellsville and
all others who have heard of the af-
fair are indignant at what they term
an unprovoked assault on an inoffen-
sive and peaceable man.

Mardis was promptly arrested by
Officer Madden and locked up.

Rochester Dickey, father-in-law of Mardis, is in Wellsville pleading with
the mayor to have Mardis admitted
to bail. A hearing in the case will probably be held this afternoon.

William Higginson is about 55 years
of age, of slight build and slender
frame. He is not strong physically
and has suffered from an injury to his
head, accidentally received some years
ago. He and his wife and daughter
live on Fourth street in East Liver-
pool.

He was for many years a prominent
pottery worker and had charge of the
decorating department for McNicol &
Burton and later for the D. E. McNicol
pottery. About two years ago he bought out the J. M. House bottling
establishment in Wellsville. His son
Fred is the manager of the Wellsville
saloon.

Mardis has run a barber shop on Main street in Wellsville for the past
eight years. He is a powerfully built
man, weighing over 225 pounds and
has a reputation as a fighting man. He is a scientific boxer and some years

Petition for Relief Turned Down—Private Company Wants to Build a Railroad Switch.

An adjourned meeting of council met last night in council chamber. President Steiner called the meeting to order with Glaser, Aughinbaugh, Brennan, Donaldson, Steiner and Turner present.

The solicitor asked what committee had charge of the storm sewer between Tenth and Twelfth streets. He said there was some trouble over the right of way on the Worstell property; also with the Trotter property, and that belonging to the Clendenning family. The sewer can do no harm to Mr. Trotter's piece of land, but on account of an old quarrel with the city he is unwilling to give the right of way.

The sewer goes within one foot of Clendenning's house, and he says he will sell the whole property for $2,500. A special committee, composed of Glaser, Brennan and Turner, was appointed to procure right of way between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. Mr. Turner asked if the council could hire some one to procure the right of way. President Steiner asked what the sewer commission is for. Solicitor Wells said it was customary for council to attend to all city property matters.

Mr. Turner said that some people would sign a preliminary paper, but when the legal paper was taken around they refused to sign.

Fremont McClain presented a request that a grade be established on Twentieth street. The request was granted and Engineer Leith instructed to establish the grade.

The following bills were ordered paid: Forbes & Morrow, $5.24; P. H. White, $3.25; Henry Herbert, $357.07.

The city engineer presented an ordinance establishing a grade on Mill street. The motion was placed on first reading.

Mr. Van Dyke then came before council. He said: "Gentlemen of council, a petition was placed before your body at its last meeting, praying for some relief from the destruction and damages caused by the discharge of heavy cannon and anvils loaded with powder and dirt on the Fourth of July. In years past brick bats have been placed on these cannon, placed on end and have been shot up into the air, endangering the lives of thousands of people. This petition was signed by five enthusiastic people, and I could have obtained the names of 500 people if I had had the time. There is an ordinance which refers this matter to the mayor and chief of police. Why, you might as well refer it to the waste basket. When the mayor gives his permission we have no recourse. We ask you to refer this matter to the ordinance committee. I like to see the boys have a good time, but when it comes to the destruction of property and the endangering of lives, I object."

President Steiner, in a warm address, answered this speech. He said if Van Dyke expects the mayor and council to run around after these boys he is badly mistaken. He said there was no call for the words that "you may as well refer the matter to the waste basket as to the mayor and chief." He said there were some "nasty nice" people who do not want to prosecute these people. If they would prosecute they would get their just dues.

Mayor Dennis said all had been done in past years that ought to have been done. Steiner said he did not see why 6,000 people had to dance to six whistles. The petition was turned down.

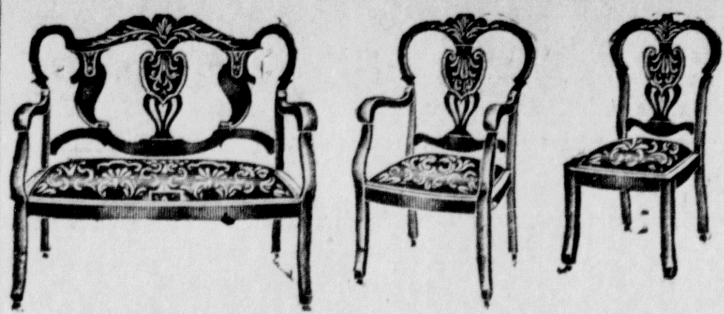

Judge P. M. Smith sent in a communication asking if a private company could build the switch back of town. He said that he understood that the Pennsylvania company were too slow. He said if the franchise could be procured, he thought a private company would do it. A committee composed of Turner, Brennan and Whitacre was appointed to look into the matter.

The mayor was instructed to order the commissioner to remove the Bell telephone pole in the rear of E. C. Taylor's property and the telegraph pole at Twelfth street.

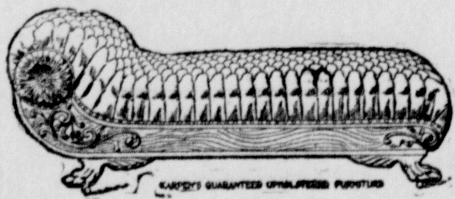

Mr. Glaser reported bad places in Commerce street between Fifteenth and Seventeenth. There was also a bad hole reported in front of the Wellsville china works. The improvement committee was given power to act in these matters. Council then adjourned.

WOULD NOT ACCEPT

TO RETURN TO PRIVATE LIFE

Washington, June 12.—President McKinley put an effectual quietus on the third-term talk which has gained some currency in the newspapers through interviews with certain well-known Republicans favoring the re-nomination of the president for a third term. Shortly before Tuesday's cabinet meeting adjourned Secretary Cortelyou gave to the press a signed statement by the president, intended for the American people, announcing that he was not a candidate for a third term and would not accept a re-nomination if one were tendered.

A decision to issue such a statement was reached Monday night, when the president read to the members of the cabinet his proposed statement, at the same time personally pledging each to secrecy until public announcement was made. The cabinet, on hearing the reasons the president advanced, which are substantially set forth in the public announcement, namely, that talk of a third term would react on the national policies the administration is endeavoring to promote, coincided with the view of their chief that the present was an opportune time for its promulgation. The phraseology of the announcement was considered further by the cabinet Tuesday, and after a change or two from Monday night's draft, Secretary Cortelyou was directed to make it public. The president's intimate personal and political friends later expressed themselves as not surprised at the decision announced, but quite generally conceded that they had not expected such an announcement at this time, thinking that the president would not so quickly take hold of the third-term gossip.

They said, however, that they believed the president had shown his quick and excellent political judgment by crushing the third-term movement in its very birth.

Following was the statement: "I regret that the suggestion of a third term has been made. I doubt whether I am called upon to give it notice. But there are now questions of the gravest importance before the administration and the country and their consideration should not be prejudiced in the public mind by even the suspicion of the thought of a third term.

"In view, therefore, of the reiteration of the suggestion of it, I will say now, once for all, expressing a long-settled conviction, that I am not only not a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it, if it were tendered me.

"My only ambition is to serve through my second term to the acceptance of my countrymen, whose generous confidence I so deeply appreciate, and then with them to do my duty in the ranks of private citizenship.

CHINESE INDEMNITY MEETING.

St. Petersburg, June 12.—The impression prevails in official circles here that the mode of paying the Chinese indemnity will not be settled for a long period, possibly not until the present ministers at Peking are replaced. It is thought they all would welcome a change of post, and that new men would be readier to settle the differences. While Russia is not pressing the guaranteed loan proposition, because the constitutional powers could not guarantee the loan without legislative consent, which would necessitate delay, the plan is not withdrawn. The British proposition is not acceptable.

Mr. Rockhill's arbitration proposal causes some wonder, since the mode of payment is hardly considered a suitable issue for a legal determination.

ONE OF BROOKS' PUPILS.

He Was Unjustly Punished, but He Forgave the Offense.

After his graduation from Harvard college Phillips Brooks became a teacher in the Boston Latin school. And here, on the very threshold of his career, he met with failure. So much had been expected of him that his want of success was naturally a subject of much comment at the time, and after he had become a great preacher his early failure was still referred to and sometimes was used to point a moral.

It was a turbulent class that Phillips Brooks had to teach. Before he took charge of it three teachers had been driven away. The man who followed Mr. Brooks, to fill out the year, confessed himself so wearied by the frequent resort to corporal punishment that he was obliged to betake himself to the mountains for the summer to recuperate his strength. The boys were certainly in fault, but the blame was not wholly theirs, and long since they may be supposed to have repented of their mischief.

Phillips Brooks was then not yet 20 years old, little more than a boy. Naturally, perhaps, he made mistakes. On one occasion, says his biographer, he punished a boy who had committed no fault. After Mr. Brooks had become bishop of Massachusetts, as he was moving in his majestic dignity across Boston Common, he met this boy, then a mature man occupying a post of trust and influence. Neither man had forgotten the incident.

Looking down upon his old pupil, the bishop made a certain appeal for forgiveness. "Tell me, now," he said, "that I did not make a mistake and punish the wrong boy."

"Yes, you did make a mistake. You punished the wrong boy," was the answer, "but I have missed so many punishments that I deserved that I ought to be grateful for that one, which I did not deserve."—Youth's Companion.

Looking For Work.

"Yes, ma'am," said the ragged fat man, "I'm lookin fur work. Yer ain't got no odd jobs of scrubbin or washin ter be did, have yer?"

"Why, you surely don't do scrubbing or work of that sort?" said the house-keeper.

"Sure not. I'm lookin fur work fur me wife."—Philadelphia Record.

The discovery of what is true and the practice of that which is good are the two most important objects of philosophy.—Junius.

THE PRESIDENT HAS SPOKEN.

The third term nonsense is at an end. With his usual good sense and excellent judgment, President McKinley has taken the people into his confidence, as he has often done before. He regrets that the suggestion of a third term has been made. So do other earnest Republicans, seeing in the suggestion capital which the Democracy is ready to make the most of, with or without excuse. But the third term idea was broached by the most earnest and zealous of the president's friends. In their admiration for him they probably did not consider that their words might work harm to the party and prove an embarrassment to the president himself. Such a result might have been looked for, had the proposition been agitated seriously for the next three years. For the third term idea is not popular—at least, not popular enough to arouse enthusiasm—while it would inevitably lead to prejudice and factionalism.

President McKinley, with reluctance and yet firmly, has therefore tackled the subject, and spoken with his characteristic directness. "Once for all," he says, "expressing a long-settled conviction, I am not only not a candidate for a third term, but would not accept a nomination for it, if it were tendered me."

This is direct and explicit enough. Neither the friends nor the foes of the president can misunderstand it. It puts an effectual quietus upon a movement, which, had it gained sufficient headway, might have worked serious harm. William McKinley is one of the greatest of our presidents. He is too conservative and too prudent to seek to set aside precedents and to violate an unwritten law which the people of the United States have obeyed for more than a hundred years. The best friends of the president and of his party will rejoice that the president has spoken, and spoken so wisely.

THE LIMIT REACHED.

Women are said to be far more patient than men. But, even as the patience of Job had a limit, so has theirs. Miss Mary A. Pearsall, of Freeport, L. I., thinks 25 years of patient waiting is as much as any woman could reasonably be expected to endure, especially where a love affair is concerned. And so she has drawn the line, suing her dilatory lover, who has basked in her smiles for a quarter of a century, for $25,000 damages for non-fulfillment of an alleged contract to marry her. If the facts are as Mary states them, a thousand dollars a year for such patience as she has exercised is none too much.

THE LATEST MINE HORROR.

Western Pennsylvania has been again horrified by a mine explosion which is even more sad than these terrible occurrences usually are. In this case the rescuers, owing to a second explosion of gas, came near meeting the fate of the men for whose bodies they were searching. A report from the scene of the disaster states that the wrecked mine has always been considered dangerous, on account of the poor appliances for forcing air into the shaft. There have been many discussions about improvements, but they appear to have ended in talk.

"The use of safety lamps has been made especially imperative in these mines by the district inspector of mines, owing to the great danger known to exist," says a correspondent, "but careless miners sometimes use open lights because they can see better by them, and this helps them to make a bigger day's wages." And thus lives are needlessly sacrificed to satisfy some ignorant miner's

greed for gain. Mining is a risky occupation at best; but half the hazards can be removed by proper precautions. One would think those engaged in the business in Pennsylvania had had enough melancholy warnings so that they would do everything possible to insure safety; but the fact seems otherwise. The mining laws are very stringent, and strict adherence to them should be exacted both of owners and employees. Were this done in all cases, probably half the mine explosions that shock the world from time to time would never occur at all.

Those Philadelphia lodge men who put a candidate for initiation through such severe discipline that he was rendered unconscious and taken to a hospital, had better moderate their ritual or close their lodge room. People are not likely to fall over each other to get into a "fraternity" where a new brother is thus treated.

Americans are about to teach Londoners a few things about the proper management and equipment of street railways. They can do it; for, although their own systems are far from perfect, they are acknowledged, even by English engineers, to be far ahead of those in use in the British isle.

There are still three years in which to decide the important question, Who is the best man to take up William McKinley's work where he leaves off and continue it most wisely? It is a big question, but the nation is used to such problems and usually settles them well.

Country subscriber—Yes, the streets of East Liverpool have been cleaned frequently of late. You are probably aware that it has rained almost every day thus far this month.

Poor Bryan! His desperate efforts to attract the attention of the Democratic party are meeting with anything but flattering success.

A SMALL FIRE

Caused By an Explosion Created Excitement on Broadway Last Night.

A small fire occurred at the home of Mrs. J. W. Wilson on Broadway last night. A new gas stove had been placed in the house and John Deslanders was engaged in connecting the pipes when a small amount of gas which was in the pipe exploded, setting fire to the woodwork.

The department was called, but the flames had been extinguished before it arrived. The explosion is thought to have been caused by a lamp which was sitting on the table. Mr. Deslanders was slightly burned about the face. No damage was done.

THE LOCAL POTTERIES

For the first time in weeks the standing committee according to its new makeup will meet this evening.

The members are: T. J. Duffy, S. M. Moore and J. T. Wood, from the Brotherhood, and Thomas McNicol, Patrick McNicol and Ben Harker, from the manufacturers. There is a vast amount of work for the committee to look after, owing to the length of time which has elapsed since the committee held a meeting. However, the matters which they will have to settle will not be of very great importance, as the recent conference sub-committees have disposed of the larger grievances brought up by the various locals.

The employees of the clay shops at the Sevres China company were treated to a one-act comedy a few days ago. There are two young men employed on the plant who are brothers, and one is keeping company with a young lady who resides not far from the pottery. The other began plaguing him about her, and said he was going with the same girl and had a picture of her in his pocket. His brother on the quiet, as he thought, was going through his coat when caught in the act. An argument was the result, and they finally came together, but were separated before either was injured.

Owing to the changed conditions under the agreement of the recent conference a man was taken from the kilndrawing crew at the Globe on a certain kiln, and the men refused to work. This made more work for President Veith, but he was equal to the occasion, and the kiln was drawn yesterday with another crew. An effort was made by N. A. Frederick, a member of the firm, to make matters clear to the men, but they either could not or would not be convinced.

Harvey Brown recently accepted a position in the clay shops at the plant of the Sevres company. He is a fellow who cannot stand for any fun, and when one of his shop mates commenced to jolly him he became angry and wanted to fight. He was caught and thrown the clay shute, was not injured, and has now learned to take a joke.

Eugene Bradshaw, of Niles, was in the city yesterday. He stated that part of the roof had been placed on the Niles pottery plant and that the machinery, which was made in this city, would be shipped this week. The plant will be placed in operation as soon as possible.

The Sebring pottery employees will picnic at Rock Springs park Monday, June 17. About 500 people are expected to attend. The Sebring band will accompany the excursion.

Miss Maude Miller, who has been spending the past three weeks at her home in New Cumberland, has resumed her duties as decorator at the Sevres plant.

J. M. Masters, employed at the Sevres plant, was compelled to quit work and go home yesterday at noon, being ill with measles.

Charles Speight went to Golden, Col., Saturday, where he will have charge of the sagger shop at the pottery there.

Frank Rogers will resign his position at the Sevres pottery Saturday, and will accept a berth at the D. E. McNicol plant.

James Heath, formerly of Peoria, left today for Golden, Col., where he has taken a position as dipper.

William McMaster, who is employed as a batterout at the Sevres plant, is ill with the measles.

Ed Fitzgerald has accepted a position as warehouseman at the Sevres.

Miss Rose Glass has taken a position as decorator at the Sevres pottery.

William Higginson has accepted a position as printer at the Sevres plant.

Local No. 48, warehousemen, has moved from the Odd Fellows' hall to the Smith Fowler building and will hold its first regular meeting there tonight.

CONSTABLE SUED

Accused of Failure to Make a Return. Case a Complicated One.

Constable James A. Miller was the defendant in a case tried yesterday in the court of Justice Rose, which was the first of that kind ever brought before that magistrate. S. L. Miller was the plaintiff, and brought suit to recover $36.91 from the defendant on a judgment which was originally rendered against John W. Fetty. The constable levied on some personal property belonging to Fetty, but failed to make the necessary return within 30 days as required by law.

The plaintiff held the constable for the amount of the judgment, contending that he had failed to properly do his duty in allowing the time to expire before fully executing the work he had been instructed to do. The plaintiff was represented by Attorneys Gaston and Frank Lones, of Wellsville, while Attorneys R. G. Thompson and Hollis Grosshans represented the defendant.

From start to finish the case was stubbornly contested, and each of the lawyers had so many law books in the court room that the magistrate was almost crowded away from his desk. A number of witnesses were examined, among them being Squire McLane.

The defense contended that the constable had not neglected his duty, and that while he did fail to make the necessary return, he did so because of his inability to do otherwise by reason of his instructions to be lenient with Fetty. The attorneys on both sides made long arguments, which involved technicalities of various natures.

Justice Rose stated that as the case was entirely new to him and of a complicated nature, he felt inclined to study it thoroughly before rendering a decision. At the end of his deliberations he rendered in favor of defendant, holding that the judgment as originally rendered was void.

TILT BETWEEN MEMBERS

same.

Nice asked Solicitor Gaston for his report concerning what had been done in the matter of collecting the money due from the Rock Springs Railroad company. The solicitor stated he was not ready to report.

Marshall asked why the paving of Calcutta road had not been completed up to the entrance to Riverview cemetery. The matter was finally settled by the cemetery trustees being authorized to do the work, the city paying for the same when it was completed. Superintendent Whitacre was present and said the cemetery association would bear the expense of grading.

Bullock stated that the contemplated inspection of the property which the city expected to purchase at the intersection of Pennsylvania avenue and Robinson street had not been made. A committee composed of Messrs. Heddeleston, Cripps and Bullock was appointed to make the inspection.

Heddeleston brought up the much-talked-of matter regarding the improvement of Prospect street and asked that definite action be taken. After a lengthy discussion the solicitor was instructed to draw up a petition to be submitted to the property holders along that street between Calcutta road and Lincoln avenue for signatures. It was thought best to sewer and pave the street, and if the residents are willing it is likely the work will be done as soon as possible.

Marshall stated that the work of paving Pennsylvania avenue was progressing too slowly and thought the contractor should put a larger force of men at work. The contractor will be notified to do so at once.

McLane reported that the damage claim of George Shaw had been investigated. He said he thought the city was in no wise responsible for Shaw's injury and did not believe the claim should be paid.

Engineer Kelly called the attention of council to the need of sewerage Fenton street before the contemplated paving was done. The sewer will be built first.

Barlow found fault with the plat of land accepted from the Union Land company at the last meeting of council. He said the alley was only 20 feet wide, and he thought it should be wider. Other members thought likewise, and on motion it was decided to reconsider the action taken on the acceptance of the plat.

Thomas stated that the police committee recommended that the roof and cupola of the city hall be repaired and the building painted. The proposition was much discussed and the committee finally instructed to get bids on the work.

Barlow thought repairs should be made at the Broadway wharf, but other members of council couldn't see it that way. After a somewhat lengthy pow-wow the wharf committee was instructed to make an inspection of all wharves and report at the next meeting. Adjournment was then in order.

WEST END

FELL FROM A TREE

WEST END LAD UNCONSCIOUS FOR HALF AN HOUR.

Struck His Head on a Stone and Was Badly Hurt—No Bones Broken.

Claude Brooks, of Fairview street, fell from an apple tree and was badly bruised Monday afternoon. He was rendered unconscious by the fall and did not regain his senses for almost half an hour. Dr. Clark was called, and resuscitated the injured boy. It was thought that he had sustained severe internal injury, but a medical examination of his injuries showed that they were not of a serious nature. His face was badly lacerated and he was considerably bruised, but is able to be out today. His head struck a stone when he fell, which caused him to be unconscious for so long a time.

A large number of neighbors were attracted to the house by the exaggerated reports that were at first circulated about the accident.

STREETS FLOODED

And West End Cellars Got a Portion of the Superfluous Water.

The heavy rainstorm caused considerable damage and a great deal of inconvenience in the West End yesterday afternoon. The water fell so rapidly that the sewers could not carry it off, and the streets were all flooded. Large quantities of dirt and gravel were carried on the streets and in some places the gutters were filled and the sewers clogged to such an extent that cellars were flooded.

The street commissioner and his force will have to spend several days in the West End in order to put the streets in their former condition.

MYSTERIOUS SHOTS

Heard in Jethro Hollow, But Nobody Knows Whence They Came.

The residents of Jethro were greatly excited last night by a number of shots from revolvers in the hollow just above the bridge. Everybody wanted to find out what was the matter, but no one seemed anxious enough to investigate and the affair passed off without anyone finding out what the trouble was about.

Stayed by His Horse.

WEST END NOTES.

Miss Anna McCombs, of Franklin, Pa., is visiting at the home of Miss Margaret Cuthbert, May street.

CHAPTER V.—Continued.

"I say, Miss Howard, don't you hear?" exclaimed Crowder roughly.

"Yes, I hear," she replied, "but I'm sorry I can't oblige you. I can't sing any more."

"If you can sing for that d—d rebel there," continued Crowder, "I should think you could sing for us, who are good and loyal English like yourself."

She was silent again.

"Didn't we rescue you?" he continued. "Aren't we your saviors? Don't you owe us gratitude?"

Still unanswered, he swore an oath and said to his comrades:

"Here's gratitude for you, lads. Well, if she won't sing for us, we can sing for her. How do you like this, my lady? It's called 'I'll Owe the Muir to Maggy,' and it goes very well with the song that you sang."

Then he sang the old song, which, like the girl's, was Scotch:

"And I'll owe the muir to Maggy—
Her wit and sweetness call me—
There to my fair I'll show my mind,
Whatever may befall me.
If she loves mirth, I'll learn to sing,
Or, like the Nine to follow,
I'll lay my lugs in Pindus' spring
And invoke Apollo."

"If she admire a martial mind,
I'll sheath my limbs in armor;
If to the softer dance inclined,
With gayest airs I'll charm her;
If she love grandeur day and night,
I'll plot my nation's glory,
Find favor in my prince's sight
And shine in future story."

"Beauty can work wonders with ease
Where wit is corresponding,
And bravest men know best to please
With complaisance abounding.
My bonnie Maggy love can turn
Me to what shape she pleases
If in her breast that flame shall burn
Which in my bosom blazes."

His voice was not unmusical, and he had some idea of rhythm and measure. His comrades joined him, and they roared out a chorus which must have penetrated to the farthest edge of the wood.

It was plain enough that the man was drunk and was relapsing into his natural condition of savagery. I hoped that he would fall into the fire, but he did not. His drunken head swayed from side to side, but he kept step to the beat of the song.

One of the men drew his empty bottle and beat upon its side with his knife blade. It made a lively tinkle that sounded like music, and the others, seeing his success, imitated him. Crowder had not only a vocal but an instrumental chorus as well. His zeal increased, and he danced like an Indian at a scalp dance, while the men roared out the song and beat their bottles with enthusiasm.

"Again I congratulate you on your company, your glorious band of rescuers, Miss Howard," I called out to her.

I know she heard me, but she did not reply. Her lips were set firmly, but her cheeks were growing paler and paler, and she seemed to be white to the hair. I tugged at my bonds, but I could not move them.

The song stopped for a moment, and Crowder, looking around for further amusement, spied me.

"A good song, boys, and good fun," he cried, "but here's better fun. Let's hang the prisoner and see him squirm." The others, as drunk as their leader, shouted their approval, but the girl sprang up.

"You shall not do that!" she cried.

"And why not, miss?" asked Crowder. "He is our prisoner."

"Because I will not permit it!" she cried.

They roared with laughter.

"If you do," she said, "I will report your act to Colonel Tarleton. This man is an important prisoner. He can guide Tarleton to Morgan, and he will do it to save his life. He must be taken safely to the British camp. Tarleton will reward you well."

"All right, if you say so, Miss Howard," he said. "Anything to oblige, especially one as handsome as you are. And we won't hang him tonight. Maybe we will do it in the morning anyhow, but that's no reason why we should stop the fun now. A soldier's life is hard, and he ought to make merry while he can."

He took a large flask from his haversack and shared it with his men. Then they began to sing and dance again, all of them wild with drink.

It was an orgy of savages. The fire had died down and ceased to blaze; only the red embers glowed in the darkness. I could feel the blackness of the night which rolled up and encircled us more closely. The girl was as immovable as a statue. Her tawny hair shone in the dim light, and I could see that her face was still white, but that was all.

One of the men fell down presently

from sheer exhaustion.

The man never moved, but began to snore, and a second one yielded to exertion and whisky and, stretching himself out on the ground, went to instant sleep. Crowder himself was the third and was followed speedily by the others, including the sentinel, who had joined without objection in the orgy. The six men were sound asleep in a slumber heavy with weariness and liquor.

A last brand fell over in the coals and blazed up. The girl rose from the log, and by its light I could see that her face had turned from white to red. She walked quickly over to me and said in a voice shaking with excitement and alarm:

"Take me away from here, Mr. Marcel! Take me away at once! I would rather be with you than these men, these savages, these brutes! Nor is your life safe here!"

"They wear the British uniform. They must be loyal British soldiers," I could not keep from saying.

"I do not know what they are," she replied, with alarmed insistence, "but let's go. Pray take me at once."

She pulled at my shoulders as if she

luck stop at that. The abandoned horses, frightened by the report, neighed and stamped again, creating a great uproar.

The sentinel, who was the least drunk of the party, sprang to his feet. He was yet half dazed with sleep and liquor, but he saw the dim figures of a man and a woman riding away from the little encampment, and he knew that, another and another knew that we would soon be in the open. The girl's horse stumbled, and she uttered a little cry of dismay, but in a moment the horse was steady on his feet again, and we went on. The beams grew more numerous and fused into a broad shield of moonlight. Two minutes more and we would be out of the wood and into the cleared ground, with the fields racing behind us.

But the light had its evil for us. Against its broad silver disk we were silhouetted like the man in the moon, and the popping of pistols told us that we had become good targets. One bullet passed so close to my head that I thought it must have cut a lock of hair in its passage, and I took it as a warning to hurry.

She was riding well, and her expression was firm and courageous. We shook the reins against the necks of our horses, and taking the chances of bush and vine sped into the open as a volley of pistol shots whistled after us.

I uttered a shout half of pleasure, half of defiance, to our pursuers and bade Old Put show them what it was for a real horse to run his best. I had confidence, too, in the horse that the girl rode, for he was long limbed. He looked like a strong animal, and he certainly had a clean, fast gait that kept him alongside of Old Put.

I regarded our escape as assured, and the girl seemed to take a like view of the case. Relief showed in her eyes.

"Never." I could not say her nay, for were we not retreating steadily before the advance of Tarleton, a retreat that seemed to all to be the part of wisdom, for again let it be said that we were fewer in numbers, far inferior in equipment, and more than half of our little army were raw troops, farmers! The exhilaration of the flight and escape disappeared for the time, and a heavy depression took its place.

would have me rise and go on the instant.

"Untie my wrists," I said.

She tugged at the cords, but could do nothing. They were tied too tight.

"Take a knife from that drunken fool's belt," I said, indicating one of the men. "Don't be afraid. He won't wake."

She took the knife from the man's belt and cut my bonds. I rubbed my wrists together for a few minutes to take out the stiffness and to restore the circulation. Again she urged me to start without delay.

They had taken my arms from me when they bound me, and I recovered them, adding to my supply Crowder's pistol and some ammunition. Then I turned to the horses.

Old Put's great dark eyes flamed with approval and gladness. He had stood at his halter's length, watching the orgy and my rescue with attention and understanding.

"We'll bid farewell to these beasts now, old comrade," I said in a whisper, patting his nose.

He was too cautious to whinny a reply. The brown hack was near him, but I saw another among those belonging to the guerrillas which I fancied much more than he. I hastily changed Miss Howard's saddle to his back, assisted her to mount and sprang upon Old Put.

I turned the heads of our horses toward the northwest, but as the woods before us were dense and interlaced with wiry bushes and creeping vines we dared not attempt more than a walk. The horses stamped and neighed as we left them. The girl's mount stepped on a large, dry branch, which broke with a crack like a pistol shot. Nor did it

according to the plans of Captain Crowder, it was not what should be. He fired a hasty pistol shot in our direction, the bullet clipping the dry twigs above our heads, and then shouted to his comrades to awake, giving emphasis to his cries with many sturdy kicks.

"Look out for your head!" I shouted to Miss Howard. "An untoward bough might prove fatal. And be sure you stay with me."

"I'll not leave you," she said.

He curved his long neck in the darkness and looked ahead with sharp brown eyes. I let the reins fall loose, and he wound about among the trees with a judgment that was never at fault. The other horse kept close at his side. Behind us we could hear the cries of the awakened men as they leaped upon their horses and rode after us, shouting to us to stop. Two or three more pistol shots were fired, but the air received them.

If the men could see at all, it was but dimly, though they could follow us by the hoof beats of our horses and the tearing of the vines and snapping of the bushes as we passed. They made such a prodigious cursing and swearing that we were never in any doubt as to where they were. I had a mind for a moment to send toward them a pistol ball which would stop their fuss, but I concluded that the more noise they made the better it would be for us, as it gave us exact warning of their approach. They did not seem to be gaining upon us, which was a satisfaction for the present. Out on the plain they would see us more distinctly, but I believed that our horses could leave them there.

18 KNOWN DEAD.

Only Four Bodies Recovered From Mine Shaft, At Port Royal Pa.

Inspector and Brave Miners Stumbled Over Bodies of Supt. McCune and Taylor Gunsaulus, Sr.—Others Had to Return For the Bodies.

Port Royal, Pa., June 12.—As a result of the explosion in the Port Royal mines of the Pittsburgh Coal company is men are dead, seven are injured and thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed.

The official list of the dead and injured was made public by the coal company. It is as follows:
Dead Recovered.
William McCune, 52 years old, superintendent of the company's mines along the Baltimore and Ohio railroad; body found lying in the passage-way about 1,000 feet from the shaft; removed to the family home at West Newton; wife, three sons and one daughter survive.

Taylor Gunsaulus, Sr., 75 years old, loader in mine No. 2; survived by a widow and several grown up children; died from injuries.
Fritz Kreuter, died at the McKeesport hospital.
Still in Mine and Known to Be Dead:
William F. Allison, assistant superintendent of mines below West Newton, on Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad; leaves a wife and five children.
Dennis Wardley, foreman of mines Nos. 1 and 2; lived at Port Royal, and is survived by a wife and four children.
John Keck, foreman at Darr's mine; leaves a wife and several children.
Michael Roy, foreman at Euclid mines; married, and leaves a widow and small boy.
Bernard Hall, loader in No. 2 mine; lived at Smitinton; survived by a wife and two children.
Taylor Gunsaulus, Jr., son of man taken from mine; employed as roadman; leaves a wife.
Jerry Daly, roadman, began work Monday morning; lived at Connelisville, where wife and children are.
John Peoples, roadman in mine No. 2; leaves a wife.
David James, machine setter in mine No. 1; lived at Smitinton with his wife.
John Canto, machine boss at Darr mine.
Samuel Hadley, assistant foreman in mine No. 2; leaves a wife and one daughter.
Peter Merchando, boss driver in mine No. 1; survived by wife and child.
John Stickle, pipeman in No. 3 mine; leaves wife and three children.
Frank Davenport, roadman; married; no children; lived here.

The Injured.
—Smith, taken to McKeesport hospital.
Harry Beveridge, taken to McKeesport hospital.
Robert McKenny, pit boss at White-oh, badly burned in explosion.
Charles McCaffrey, superintendent of Souper mine, badly burned in explosion.
Garence Setler, roadman, injured at explosion Monday night.
Daniel McCullough, burned about the face, arms and body.
Thomas Gleason, of Smithton, burned by explosion.

Investigating the Cause.
What caused the explosion and loss of life is something the mine inspectors of the Ninth and Eleventh districts spent some time trying to find out.
The officials of the coal company declare that none but regulation mine lamps were used, while others are of the opinion that one of the men carelessly lit a match, which ignited the gas.
It was ascertained that for several weeks men have been at work in mine No. 2, where the first explosion happened, erecting cribbing between entries No. 2 and entry No. 21.
Much of the cribbing had been placed in position, and it was while this work that Peoples, Davenport, Stickle and Daly met death.
The explosion was a terrific one and fully three hours after it happened one entered the shaft. One of the men who started the company started the mine shaft No. 1, located on the Baltimore river, traveled 520 feet under ground to shaft No. 2, and then traveled nearly 2,000 feet to the place where the four men had last been.

The four were found together and dead. Efforts were made to bring the bodies out, but the fire damp was too close for the rescuers, and they had to return in safety.
Upon arrival at the top of the shaft the rescuers reported to Superintendent McCune that the men were dead, and it would be folly to attempt to bring out dead bodies, as the situation here was in such a dangerous condition.
All the men, asked for volunteers, had reached the open air, while the others were slowly smothered or suffocated, and until the fire damp was extinguished, children and women must wait to ascertain whether miners can be found of the situation here again reached a safe place when Mine Inspector Bernard attended the shaft and started upon an investigating tour of the mine. Men gave the signal to be lowered.

It was another explosion, and grave fears were entertained for the party. Members of the party stumbled over the body of McCune and further on found the body of Taylor Gunsaulus. Some of the members were detailed to take them back.
The whole party had a terrible experience and were unable to get the bodies of Taylor Gunsaulus, Sr., and Superintendent McCune out, but another party went back and got them.

DORMAN "PEACHED"
Described the Entry to the House and Murder—Intimated That Jack Biddle Did the Shooting.

Pittsburg, June 12.—During the course of the Kahney murder trial Walter Dorman described the entry into the house for the purpose of robbery, and the murder of Thomas Kahney. During his testimony, in part, he said that on the night of the murder he joined the Biddle boys at 10:15 o'clock. They went around to a lot in the rear of the store, and waited several hours in a dark lot for the lights to go out.

He saw a woman upstairs, but waited until about 12 o'clock and then made a survey of the premises. After boring two holes in the shutter with a brace and bit, while standing on the fence, he sprang the latch with a wire and swung open the shutter. All this time Jack Biddle was on the ground. Dorman identified the brace and bit used on that occasion. He raised the window and entered, followed by Ed and Jack Biddle.

They tried to chloroform all the inmates from the door with an atomizer he had made, but gave that up and entered the room.
"We stepped inside," said Dorman. "I passed to the head of the bed and pressed it to a woman's face. She started to scream and continued. Edward Biddle covered the boy in bed with one revolver. A man started in the room. I was standing with my back to the door, holding Mrs. Kahney, when the shot was fired."

Dorman told of a scrap of conversation which passed between the two brothers concerning the shooting. Edward Biddle said to John, "By— you might have shot me, Jack." This was said after they got out of the house and were speeding along Boggs avenue.
After they got out of the house by means of the window they tried to get away from the scene, taking to the country. They got lost and Edward Biddle made inquiry of a man whom Dorman did not see plainly, as to their whereabouts. They came to a school house, where there were directions, "three and a half miles to Carnegie," but got to the street car track about 6 o'clock in the morning. They got on the car and came to Market street and Fifth avenue, where they took a Bedford avenue car, arriving home about 7 o'clock.
The cross-examination seemed intended to try and prove that Dorman was the planner of the gang's operations and the Biddle boys his dupes.

Out on Maine Central—Canadian Pacific Grants Conference.
Montreal, June 12.—Grand President Wilson, of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America, sent an ultimatum to President Shaughnessy, of the Canadian Pacific railway, demanding a conference on the subject of an increase of wages for the trackmen of the company and giving him until noon Tuesday for a reply. About five minutes to 12 Tuesday Mr. Shaughnessy replied, fixing a conference for today.
Portland, Me., June 12.—The strike of the track and fuel men on all lines of the Maine Central railroad was fully under way and nearly all of the members of the eight divisions of the Brotherhood of Railway Trackmen of America in this state and New Hampshire had turned over their keys to the station agents nearest their sections, notifying their roadmasters that they are no longer responsible for the property heretofore in their charge.
The main purpose of the strike is to obtain recognition for the Brotherhood officials by the railroad company. It will be pursued in conjunction with and on the same lines as the strike which is now in progress on the Canadian Pacific railroad.

The Chamber-Wylie pulpit is one of the most important in Philadelphia. It was formerly occupied by Rev. Thomas A. Hoyt, who resigned last week.
Semi-Annual Dividend Declared.

PROMINENT MEN DELEGATES.
Gen. Joe Wheeler, Lord Kinnard, J. R. Mote and Others—Rev. Dr. Hall Preached a Sermon—Series of Prayers Heard.

Boston, June 12.—A great congregation greeted President Edwin J. Shuey, of Dayton, O., as he called to order the international jubilee convention of the Young Men's Christian association in Mechanics' building. From all over the globe the delegates had come, bringing with them individual enthusiasm in the great work for young men. The big hall was radiant with color, while standards on the floor told the location of state delegations and the seats of distinguished men from other countries and lands.

The opening exercises were quite brief, President Shuey not making preliminary remarks, but asking the gathering to join in singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name."
The next service was held in Trinity church and Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, D. D., of New York, preached the sermon.
William E. Dodge, of New York, presided at the evening meeting last night in Mechanics' hall, when the state and city welcomes were delivered. The principal address was by General McCook, of New York.

A unique feature of the evening service was heard in a series of prayers, written for the occasion by the Rev. Dr. Hall, of New York, who recited them.
The singing of a hymn and a prayer offered by the Right Rev. Lord Bishop of Huron closed the service.
Among the distinguished delegates who reached this city were General Joseph Wheeler, of Alabama; Andre Siegfried, of the Y. M. C. A. of Paris; Lord Kinnard, of Scotland; J. R. Mote, the traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A.; H. DeG. Waldegrave, W. H. Mills and J. H. Putterill, prominent in connection with the London branch of the association, and others who were at the convention in Montreal this week.

MRS. M'KINLEY IMPROVED.
Was Able to Sit Up Again on Tuesday—Doctors Issued a Favorable Report.
Washington, June 12.—Mrs. McKinley's condition continued to improve Tuesday. Last night Surgeon General Sternberg, after his usual visit about 8:30, said:
Mrs. McKinley is improving slowly but steadily. Everything now is favorable. She sat up in bed for a while again today.
The president went out for a long drive Tuesday afternoon, his companion being Mr. James Barber, Sr., of Canton, O., who arrived Tuesday morning, and left on an early train last evening.
The calls of friends to express sympathy and make personal inquiries as to Mrs. McKinley's condition continue. Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis last evening was among the number, in addition to those who have made almost daily calls.

Director of Public Works E. M. Bigelow took charge of the affairs of the department, in Pittsburg.
Mail advices from China report the foundering of a Chinese passenger boat bound from Chusan for Ning Pow. Of the 68 passengers aboard the vessel at the time of the disaster 59 were drowned.
The Liverpool Daily Post printed a report that on Saturday last Mrs. Botha, wife of the Boer commandant general, held a secret interview with Colonial Secretary Chamberlain.
Mrs. Nellie Alma, of Chardon, O., became insane and died from overwork. For about 10 years she had been engaged as a painter and paper hanger. She earned enough to purchase a home for herself and her husband, who is 82 years old.
At Kansas City, Mo., formal welcoming exercises to the nobles of the Mystic Shrine were held in the Standard theater. Mayor Reed delivered an address of welcome, to which Imperial Potentate Windsor replied. San Francisco and Saratoga want the next convention.

The presbytery of Pittsburg, which met in the Bellefield Presbyterian church, Pittsburg, considered a number of matters of great interest to the denomination in this section. Rev. Dr. G. W. Chalfant, of the Park Avenue church, and Rev. R. P. Miller, of Homestead, were relieved.
The conference between the manufacturers and the wage committee of the Flint Glass Workers' union began in the Stevenson building, Pittsburg. Before the meeting the wage committee of the workers held a preliminary conference at the headquarters of the union.
The details of the murder of Lee Felty, about 15 miles from Ashland, Ky., have been received. Felty was a consumptive. His slayer, Edward Shaffer, is said to have taken a shotgun and gone to Felty's home. The sick man came to the fence and the two talked for a time in a friendly manner. Then Shaffer accused Felty of having talked about him. Felty denied the charge, and said he would face his accusers if they were brought to him. Shaffer, it is said, cocked both barrels of his gun and said: "You can't face this gun," firing both barrels and tearing off Felty's head. Shaffer fled and is in hiding in the mountains, while a posse is searching for him.

SCHEME OF YERKES.
Chicago Man Will Light London's Underground With Electricity.
The New York World's London correspondent recently saw Charles Yerkes, who has just returned from a brief holiday to resume work upon his schemes to furnish London with rapid transit. Personally Mr. Yerkes was reticent, but he authorized one of his lieutenants to make the following statement:
"Mr. Yerkes' principal plan is to change the Metropolitan District railway's motive power from steam to electricity. At present the tunnel is dark and filled with noisome gases from the locomotives. Mr. Yerkes will change all this.
"His plans are prepared for the erection of an electric station on the Thames at Chelsea to supply the power. The walls of the tunnel will be painted white, and are lamps will be placed at regular intervals, and the odors will be banished. While he was away on his visit to America, Mr. Yerkes organized the Metropolitan District Electric Traction company, with a capital of $5,000,000, all of which was taken by him and his friends.

"He has other extensive schemes in view. The meeting of the stockholders of the Metropolitan District company to pass on Mr. Yerkes' schemes will soon be held, and as Mr. Yerkes and his friends now hold a controlling interest in the stock a transfer will be effected at once."

Roses and Turks.
"It would give a genuine and religious Turk a fit if he saw how little appreciation Americans show for the rose and what little reverence they have for it," spoke a florist as he wrapped the foil about the stems of a bouquet.

"The rose is beyond question the prettiest flower that blooms, and it was considered by the Turks many years before the conquest of Granada. There is a religious legend generally believed in throughout Turkey that the red rose sprang from a drop of the great prophet Mohammed's blood. Everything beautiful in nature is ascribed to him. The Turks, therefore, have great reverence for the flower and allow it to bloom and die untouched, except on state occasions and for the purpose of making rosewater.
"After the conquest by the Turks they would not worship in any church until the walls were cleansed and washed with rosewater and thus purified by the blood of the prophet. It is used on the body for the same purpose. A Turk whose conscience is stung by some act or deed he has committed will caress and pay reverence to the rose to appease the wrath of the prophet and Allah.

"With these ideas inculcated in him from youth it would shock him severely to see the pretty flower strewn in the path of a bridal couple, thrown on the public stage or banked up in hundreds at a swell reception or party to be crushed and spoiled in an evening."

The Erring One.
It is impossible for one who never goes wrong nor makes a mistake nor commits a blunder to know just how to be sorry for an erring one. We must stumble ourselves before we can really judge of the hardships of a rough road and the frailty of weary feet. True character is first tender, then hopeful and afterward reformatory.—Exchange.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. With her whole being undergoing a change, the seeds of female troubles and sorrow. Little menstrual disorders, if neglected at the time, will follow the woman all her life and grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are robbing homes and filling graveyards, proves this. Yet, irregular and painful menstruation are often permitted to go on, sapping the life and energy, while Wine of Cardui, the positive relief for these ills, is on the shelf of every drug store. Wine of Cardui helps the maiden sustain the shock of puberty by inducing a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Wine of Cardui is an emmenagogue of great power, and works wonders in strengthening the delicate and sensitive female organs. Many young women owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. No woman should give up hope until she has given Wine of Cardui a trial. If thousands have secured relief through it, why not you?

I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time; was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything; in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui with Black-Draught wheat, needed and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me.

FOOLED THEIR FRIENDS

Miss Blanche Headley and Mr. Joseph Galloway, both of this city and well and favorably known, were married last night at 10 o'clock by Justice McLane.

The couple, through a well-laid plan of the "squire," succeeded in outwitting a number of their friends, who are members of the Carroll club. The crowd—about 20 in number—collected at the office of the justice, expecting the ceremony to take place there. The magistrate, by a clever ruse, succeeded in piloting the prospective bride and groom into the office of an attorney in the same building without being observed. The ceremony then took place without molestation, much to the chagrin of those who desired to witness the proceeding.

Mr. and Mrs. Galloway will make their home in East Liverpool.
